

FRED B. HORNE

EDUCATION

1998-1999

Master of Arts in National Strategic Studies, Air War College, Air University

1987-1988

Master of Arts in National Security and Strategic Studies, Naval War College

1976

Bachelor of Science in Oceanography, US Naval Academy

PROFESSIONAL and MILITARY EXPERIENCE

2001-Present

Associate Professor and Executive Assistant, Joint Military Operations Department, Naval War College, Newport, Rhode Island

- Provides Joint Professional Military Education to U.S. and International Officers and Interagency Professionals. Directs and evaluates students in Master's Level educational program.
- Oversees $300K departmental budget and is responsible for myriad of personnel and pay issues for 50+ military and civilian faculty. Provides counsel for department Chairman.

1999-2001

Director, Naval Staff College, Naval War College, Newport, Rhode Island

- Responsible for indoctrination and acculturation of over 75 military officers per year from over 50 countries as they attended the International officers' Course at the Naval War College. Oversaw $450K annual budget and extensive travel program to industry and government venues across the United States.

1976-2006

Officer, United States Navy, retiring as a Captain (O-6) in 2006. Scheduled to be the thirteenth man on the moon, budget reductions in the manned space program forced me in to another career path. During my active duty career, I held numerous command and staff positions in the Maritime Patrol Aviation warfare community including Commanding Officer of Patrol Squadron FIFTY, Chief of Staff to Commander Fleet Air Keflavik and Commander, Naval Forces Iceland.

COMMUNITY SERVICE AND ORGANIZATIONAL AFFILIATIONS

I am a Life member of the Naval War College Foundation and National Rifle Association. I am also active in Newfoundland dog rescue for the Newfoundland Club of New England.