Inquiries about the Institution

HISTORY

On October 6, 1884, Secretary of the Navy William E. Chandler signed General Order 325, which began by simply stating: "A college is hereby established for an advanced course of professional study for naval officers, to be known as the Naval War College.” As its first president, Rear Adm. Stephen B. Luce set a course for the Naval War College which endures to this day. He mused, "Fancy a university man aspiring to the honors of the legal profession and ignoring the law school and the science of law. . . . It must strike anyone who thinks about it as extraordinary that we members of the profession of arms should never have undertaken the study of our real business.”

Luce’s zeal for the Naval War College emanated throughout the faculty and its subsequent presidents. Alfred Thayer Mahan, a faculty member who later became president of the college, delivered a series of lectures that were published several years later as a book in 1890: The Influence of Sea Power Upon History, 1660-1783. Almost overnight, it gave Mahan a position of prominence and very rapidly promoted the respect the Naval War College received.

Despite wide acceptance of Mahan's views, the early years of the Naval War College were not without difficulties. The college mainly faced internal opposition from within the Navy, as many officers firmly believed that everything an officer needed to know was technical and could be learned at sea. The college employed a technique of tactical and operational analysis to acquaint officers with procedures for estimating military situations, determining action, drafting appropriate implementing orders, and evaluating results. This was accompanied by an elaborate program of war gaming, pioneered by the Germans as Kriegspiel and first introduced in the U.S. Navy at Newport in 1886.

Naval War College war games quickly captured the imagination of professionals and laymen alike. Theodore Roosevelt wrote prior to one of his four visits to the Naval War College, "I want to time my visit so as to see one of your big strategic games." By August 1917, these techniques made the Naval War College a laboratory for strategic and operational planning, and almost every war plan adopted between 1890 and 1917 was prepared by Naval War College officers, in cooperation with the Office of Naval Intelligence and the Navy’s General Board.

The college took advantage of times of peace in order to prepare for future military conflict. After World War II, Fleet Adm. Chester Nimitz said of the war in the Pacific, “The war with Japan had been reenacted in the game rooms here [at the Naval War College] in so many different ways that nothing that happened during the war was a surprise—absolutely nothing except the kamikaze tactics toward the end of the war; we had not visualized those."

In the years after World War II, the role of the military changed rapidly, and the college underwent nominal change, providing preparation and analysis for the Cold War era. In 1948, the college began publishing its highly respected journal, The Naval War College Review, and in 1956, the Naval Command College was founded, as a course of study for senior international naval officers. In its first half century, half of the graduates became admirals and about ten percent went on to become heads of their navies. The College of Naval Command and Staff, enrolling mid-grade officers, emphasized the operational and tactical elements of command, while the College of Naval Warfare for senior officers stressed larger policy, administrative, and strategic questions.
During the Cold War, the college added courses in international law, international relations, economics, comparative culture, and military management. In 1972, the college entirely revamped its academic curriculum to focus on strategy and policy; defense economics and decision making; and naval operations. By the ‘80s, the college was established as a focal point, stimulus, and major source of strategic thinking within the U.S. Navy. In the 1990s, the college was accredited to award its own graduates a Master of Arts degree in National Security Affairs and Strategic Studies. Additionally, the Senior Enlisted Academy opened in 1981; an entity now directly associated with the college and designed to prepare senior enlisted personnel for mid-level management.

Following the recognition for a need for a more robust contribution to joint command and control, the college initiated programs designed to strengthen Navy combat readiness at the operational level of war through the education and training of joint force maritime component commanders and their staffs. The Naval War College also began to lead an effort to develop a coherent leadership development continuum focused on developing leaders of character who are prepared for operational and strategic leadership challenges. In 2006, an initiative established the China Maritime Studies Institute to improve mutual understanding and maritime cooperation with China.

Now in its second century of service to the U.S. Navy and the nation, the Naval War College continues to prepare its students not only for their next assignments but for the remainder of their careers, by providing them with a professional military education second to none—one that is based on the intellectual flexibility that flows from a clear understanding of the fundamental principles that have governed national security affairs in peace and in war throughout history.

ADMINISTRATION

The president of the college is accountable for all operations of the college and is responsible for education and research analysis and gaming activities that contribute to its mission accomplishment. The president, normally a rear admiral, exercises oversight across all elements of the college and is subject to broad policy guidance from the Chief of Naval Operations. The president also maintains professional contacts with the fleet and military and civilian institutions of higher learning in the United States and around the world. The selection of the provost, deans, department chairs, directors and other key personnel is at the discretion of the president, as outlined in the faculty handbook. The college’s mission encompasses five key functions: PME/JPME; research analysis and gaming; combat readiness support; strengthen global maritime partnerships and mission support.

The president of the college is assisted in his governance by an executive leadership team consisting of the provost, deputy to the president/chief of staff, the Dean of Academic Affairs, the Dean of the Center for Naval Warfare Studies and the Dean of the College of Operational and Strategic Leadership, who are responsible to him for their respective functions and supporting tasks. The expanded management group includes the associate provost, the Dean of Students, department chairs and college directors, assistant deans, division heads, and special advisors to the president. The provost is the chief operating officer of the college. As such, the provost is responsible to the president for the effective and efficient functioning of the college.

As the chief operating officer, the provost is also responsible to the president to ensure that the college accomplishes its mission, functions and supporting tasks. Because of this and in order to link the college’s operations that support its mission accomplishment with its financial resource management processes, the provost exercises oversight of the preparation of the college’s annual budget as well as its participation in the Department of Defense Planning, Programming, Budgeting and Execution (PPBES) process. The provost is also the principal assistant to the president for education and is responsible for the well-being and effective use of the faculty, academic staff, and student body.

The provost performs the duties normally associated with a dean of faculty. The provost acts as the executive agent for the president in educational matters. The Dean of Academic Affairs, working through the provost, is responsible to the president for the establishment and maintenance of academic policy, standards and procedures.

The Dean of Academic Affairs directs and coordinates the professional military education programs of the college. The Dean of Academic Affairs approves the resident and nonresident academic curricula of the College of Naval Warfare (CNW), College of Naval Command and Staff (CNC&S), Naval Command College (NCC), Naval Staff College (NSC), and the College of Distance Education (CDE). The Dean of Academic Affairs, through the academic department chairs and college directors, coordinates all academic matters, including course content, teaching methodology, and scheduling; directs evaluations of the course of instruction; ensures the academic programs are provided adequate library support; and maintains close professional relationships with other military and civilian educational institutions.

The provost and Dean of Academic Affairs are supported in their duties by the Dean of Students, chairs of the core academic departments of Strategy and Policy (S&P), National Security Affairs (NSA), and Joint Military Operations (JMO), the directors of the two international colleges (NCC and NSC), the Director of CDE, the associate provost, the Assistant Dean of Academics, the library director, and the registrar. The provost also is advised by a small group of advisors representing the other U.S. military services and the State Department. The Dean of Academic Affairs supervises the work of the college’s academic and military chairs and the academic faculty, who are responsible for the curricula for the academic programs, as well as its development and teaching.

The Dean of International Programs is responsible for sustaining and strengthening international programs to enhance navy-to-navy relationships, the Joint Security Assistance Training Plan, and maritime and theater security cooperation. The college has an associate provost and an Associate Dean of Academics for Electives and Directed Research to help provide focus and continuity to academic administration. The associate provost is responsible for leading efforts to evaluate institutional and educational effectiveness and sustaining accreditation standards. He also ensures proper management of those functions specifically related to joint education and the Navy’s PME Continuum. The Associate Dean of Academics for Electives and Directed Research manages the electives program as well as the directed research program.

For the research, analysis, and gaming function, the Dean of the Center for Naval Warfare Studies directs the development of concepts concerning national security and strategic thought, and of ideas for the employment of joint and naval forces in peace and war. His duties include coordinating all advanced research activities at the college by maintaining active contact with the staffs of CNO, the Commandant of the Marine Corps, fleet commanders, and other U.S. and foreign government agencies concerned with strategy, operations, logistics, international law, technology, and political-military affairs. Additionally, the dean is responsible for publishing the Newport Papers monograph series, and books; developing annual budgets supporting war gaming for research; providing curricular support to the teaching departments; and encouraging contributions to strategic thought and research.

The Dean of the Center for Naval Warfare Studies oversees the efforts of a full-time, government-funded research, analysis and gaming faculty and staff organized into six departments: Strategic Research, War Gaming, International Law, Warfare Analysis and Research, Naval War College Press, and Maritime History, as well as a detachment of the Office of Naval Intelligence. The research, analysis and gaming faculty directly supports the college’s academic programs by teaching electives, advising student research, participating in conferences, and conducting or coordinating lectures of opportunity, in addition to performing their regular duties.

The Dean of the College of Operational and Strategic Leadership (COSL) directs and coordinates efforts in the Leadership Continuum of Professional Military Education (PME) for Navy officer and enlisted personnel including education on ethics and character development; operational level educational programs including Joint/Combined Force Maritime Component Commander (JFMCC/CFMCC) courses, Maritime Staff Operators Course (MSOC), the Executive Level Operational Level of War Course (ELOC), and the Assess and Assist Team (AAT); Senior Enlisted Academy (SEA); Stockdale Group advanced research program in operational level leadership and is responsible for hosting the NWC Ethics Conference.

The deputy to the president/chief of staff is the principal assistant to the president for mission support and is responsible for the security and safety of the Naval War College and its personnel. The deputy to the president/chief of staff is responsible for directing all administrative and support functions; implementing policies for the distribution and effective management of personnel and material in coordination with the provost; coordinating all internal and external nonacademic programs and functions; monitoring administrative and support programs for students, faculty, and staff; maintaining a comprehensive security program; and providing support for special activities pertinent to the management and administration of the college. These tasks involve the oversight of facilities, manpower and management, information resources, administrative services, publication and printing, and graphic arts. The deputy to the president/chief of staff is assisted by a mixture of naval and civilian department heads who manage the support infrastructure. Subject to the orders of the president, the deputy contributes to the effective functioning of the college and is the prime coordinating agent between the Naval War College and Naval Station Newport. As chief of staff, he manages the supporting staff.

The Director of the Senior Enlisted Academy is responsible for the education and operation of the Senior Enlisted Academy (SEA). As of Oct. 1, 2008, SEA shifted to the Naval War College from the Navy Education and Training Command. SEA provides a fully in-resident, five-week educational opportunity for Navy senior chiefs (E-8s) and selected chiefs (E-7s) as well as other service and partner nation equivalents. The SEA also has a blended program consisting of a distance learning element followed by a two-week in-resident opportunity. The college’s long-standing partner relationship transitioned to a command relationship to better execute the enlisted sailor PME continuum.

MISSION, VISION, GOALS and OBJECTIVES

This section outlines the Naval War College's current mission, vision, goals and objectives.

Mission

The mission of the Naval War College is expressed in its Mission, Functions, and Task statement (OPNAVINST 5450.207D) dated 23 May 2012:

The mission of the U.S. Naval War College is to:

1. Educate and Develop Leaders: The College shall provide current, rigorous, and relevant professional military education (PME) programs supporting the Navy's Professional Military Education Continuum. These PME programs must meet the standards required in law and policy and be accessible to the maximum number of qualified U.S. officers and Navy enlisted personnel, civilian employees of the U.S. Government, and international senior enlisted leaders and officers. The education should foster an active and growing community linked by PME including leadership with professional ethics that furthers global maritime security. The desired effect is a career continuum of PME, including leadership development and professional ethics, which produces a group of leaders of character. These leaders have trust and confidence in each other and are operationally and strategically minded, critical thinkers, proficient in joint matters, and skilled naval and joint warfighters prepared to meet the operational level of war (OLW) and strategic challenges of today and tomorrow.

2. Support Defining the Future Navy and Associated Roles and Missions: The College shall conduct research, analysis, and gaming to support the requirements of the Secretary of the Navy, the CNO, the combatant commanders, the Navy component commanders, the Navy’s numbered fleet commanders, other Navy and Marine Corps commanders, the U.S. intelligence community, and other departments and agencies of the U.S. Government. The desired effect is a program of focused, forward-thinking and timely research, analysis, and gaming that anticipates future operational and strategic challenges; develops and assesses strategic and operational concepts to overcome those challenges; assesses the risk associated with these concepts; provides analytical products that inform the Navy’s leadership and help shape key decisions; and contributes effectively to the public discourse on U.S. national security policy.

4. Support Combat Readiness: The College shall conduct Operational Level of War (OLW) education, leadership and professional ethics training, education, and assessment activities to support the ability of the Navy’s joint force maritime component commanders (JFMCCs) and Navy component commanders to function effectively as operational commanders. This effort shall include supporting the needs of joint force commanders, Navy component commanders, and the Navy’s numbered fleet commanders for including operational planning, analysis, assessment, and wargaming to respond to emerging operational requirements. The desired effect is to improve the capability of Navy commanders to lead maritime, joint and combined forces; and their staff members to plan, execute, and assess force employment options in order to function cohesively within the context of an operational level maritime staff.

6. Strengthen Global Maritime Partnerships: The College shall bring together flag, senior and intermediate level naval leaders from other countries to develop them for high command in their navies; promote an open exchange of views between international security professionals which encourages friendship and cooperation and builds trust and confidence; and study operational planning methods and common maritime security challenges. The College shall develop research and gaming collaboration with its sister institutions in other navies and work to improve the general level of maritime research and analysis. The desired effect is to maintain and strengthen the global maritime partnerships upon which the safety of the U.S. homeland and the secure flow of oceanic commerce depend.

Vision and Purpose

The 2007-8 strategic planning process produced a new vision for the College. Very succinctly, the leadership’s intent is that:

The Naval War College will be the Navy and nation’s first choice for educating and inspiring innovative leaders who think strategically, are masters of the operational art, and lead with
We will be foremost in providing the nation’s military leaders and statesmen with rigorous analysis, independent research and robust war gaming to clarify and resolve critical national security issues. As the intellectual center of the Navy, we will play an indispensable role in developing leaders, crafting strategy, and building trust and confidence—the foundation of enduring relationships of inestimable value to our nation and the world.

Our purpose remains as clear today as when the college was founded: to lead the world in the conduct of “original research in all questions relating to war and to statesmanship connected with war, or the prevention of war.”

Goals and Objectives

The Naval War College’s Strategic Plan, 2008-12 formalized goals, objectives, and milestones directed to continuously improve every aspect of the college’s life to produce the finest product possible. Goals and objectives were developed to bridge the gap between where we are now and where we want to be in the future. They reflect those things that must be done in order to fill that gap. Neither a list of functions and tasks nor an attempt to describe all existing programs and ongoing efforts, the goals that follow have been developed to require specific future actions that are measurable and support our vision of the Naval War College’s future.

[NOTE: LEAD = Accountable Executive Agent; SUPPORT = Contributory/coordinating Responsibility]

Goal 1: Develop a group of leaders of character, who have trust and confidence in each other and are operationally and strategically minded, critical thinkers, proficient in joint matters and skilled naval and joint warfighters. LEAD: Dean of Academic Affairs

Objectives:

1.1. Recruit, hire, and sustain a world class faculty and staff as the critical element in producing and delivering the highest quality education.

1.2. Develop and manage current, relevant, and rigorous curricula for Navy and Joint Professional Military Education (PME) and the Navy’s PME Continuum for officers, enlisted personnel, and civilian employees.

1.3. Deliver the highest quality education to resident students at levels appropriate to their progression along the Navy’s PME Continuum.

1.4. Deliver the highest quality education to non-resident students at levels appropriate to their progression along the Navy’s PME Continuum.
1.5. Build relationships with and represent the Navy and the Naval War College to external agencies and organizations pertinent to the NWC’s education mission.

1.6. Provide academic services and infrastructure necessary to support resident and non-resident education.

Goal 2: Provide a program of focused, forward-thinking and timely research, analysis, and gaming that anticipates future operational and strategic challenges; develops and assesses strategic and operational concepts to overcome those challenges; assesses the risk associated with these concepts; and provides analytical products that inform the Navy’s leadership and help shape key decisions. LEAD: Dean of the CNWS

Objectives:

2.1. Recruit, hire, and sustain a world class faculty and staff as the critical element in producing and delivering focused, relevant research and analysis.

2.2. Assess future operational and strategic challenges and develop and assess strategic and operational concepts to overcome those challenges.

2.3. Serve as the center of excellence in the Navy on international maritime law and the law of armed conflict.

2.4. Provide war gaming facilities and appropriate modeling and simulation systems as well as warfare analysis and decision support capabilities to support senior Navy leadership and other national security decision-makers on a wide range of operational and strategic challenges.

2.5. Build relationships with external agencies and organizations pertinent to the NWC’s research mission and conduct outreach activities to wider audiences as appropriate.

Goal 3: Improve the capability of Navy commanders to lead maritime, joint and combined forces and their staff members to plan, execute and assess and function cohesively as a maritime headquarters organization. LEAD: Director, JFMCC

Objectives:

3.1. Develop and manage focused, current, and relevant education for maritime component commanders and their staffs.

3.2. Deliver the highest quality education focused on theater-level combat leadership in the maritime domain to international and U.S. flag and general officers and their staffs.

3.3. Build relationships with and represent the Navy and the Naval War College to external agencies and organizations pertinent to joint/combined warfighting education.
Goal 4: Build and strengthen national and international maritime relationships in order to improve the ability of U.S. and partner nations to operate together in the maritime domain.
LEAD: Assistant Dean of International Programs

Objectives:

4.1. Develop and deliver a PME program for selected military officers from allied and friendly nations.

4.2. Develop and deliver outreach activities to engage senior maritime leaders from allied and friendly nations.

Goal 5: Manage and administer human, physical, and financial resources in accordance with Department of the Navy, higher headquarters, and internal guidance, and as required to accomplish the NWC’s mission functions and tasks. LEAD: Deputy & Chief of Staff

Objectives:

5.1. Maintain and sustain a world class physical and informational infrastructure to enable the NWC mission.

5.2. Provide administrative services and support to enhance the performance of NWC employees and support of students, customers, and the public.

5.3. Exercise vigilant stewardship of financial resources and articulate legitimate requirements for additional resources as needed.

The planning process that produced this plan took care to ensure that naval and joint issues are woven throughout the plan and are integral to our mission, vision, goals, and objectives. This emphasis is not new, but reflects a continuing commitment to naval and joint education that began in earnest in 1973 with a course based upon the notion that the college educates students “how to win wars” using broad concepts of political, military, and economic strategies matched to national policy objectives. From this viewpoint, and fully supported by historical case studies from the Peloponnesian Wars to the present, the advantages of joint force employment naturally emerged.

ACADEMIC PROGRAMS

The Department of Academic Affairs supports the missions of the Naval War College by developing strategic and operational leaders through education.
The Naval War College (NWC) education provides a framework in which military and civilian leaders gain a profound understanding of strategy and operations, as well as the ability to think critically, deal with uncertainty and surprise, be proficient in joint matters, and comprehend the security environment and all elements of national power. The College achieves this through the combined efforts of its three core Academic departments - National Security Affairs, Joint Military Operations, Strategy and Policy - and through the College of Distance Education, the Maritime Advanced Warfighting School, the Electives program, and focused conferences and lectures. The academic year is full and complete. To support personnel and rotation realities, we welcome - and graduate - three classes per year, with a majority arriving in July and graduating in June. We therefore execute the Intermediate Level Course (ILC), Senior Level Course (SLC), Electives, and associated resident and distance programs simultaneously, while continuously updating the curriculum, maintaining professional relevance, engaging in policy and scholarly debates, and providing service to the College.

The college has one faculty and many programs. The Academic faculty delivers two distinct courses of graduate-level education. In the Resident program at Newport, the SLC named Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz course in National Security and Strategic Studies; addresses war and grand strategy, strategic-level leadership and decision making, and theater-strategic military planning, and is accredited by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to provide Joint Professional Military Education Phase II (JPME II) certification. Graduates will earn the Master of Arts in National Security and Strategic Studies degree. The ILC, named Admiral Raymond A. Spruance Course in Maritime Warfare and Strategic Studies, addresses campaigns and war strategies, theater-level leadership and decision making, and operational planning, and is accredited to provide JPME I certification. Graduates will earn a newly established Master of Arts in Defense and Strategic Studies. Both degrees are accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges (NEASC) Committee on Institutions of Higher Education (CIHE). Resident students at both levels must take a series of focused Elective courses, participate in Ethics Conferences, and attend a series of lectures by distinguished visitors planned to complement the core curriculum.

The non-resident curriculum, with a history dating to 1914, is delivered by the College of Distance Education (CDE) using four distinct delivery methodologies to ensure wide access to the JPME I course of study. The Fleet Seminar Program (FSP) most closely replicates the resident experience in a nighttime seminar format and is currently taught at 20 locations around the country, primarily in Fleet Concentration Areas (FCAs). Eighteen full-time faculty members in Monterey, CA teach JPME I to students enrolled in graduate studies at the Naval Postgraduate School (NPS). A Web-enabled Program leverages internet technology to deliver the core course of instruction to those students not located near an FCA. And a CDROM-based Program ensures students without persistent access to the internet still have access to JPME.
The Naval War College is accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges to award qualified resident U.S. graduates with a Master of Arts degree in National Security and Strategic Studies and is accredited by the chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff to award JPME Phase I credit for the ILC and JPME Phase II credit for the SLC. Graduates from the international programs receive an NWC diploma. The Naval War College is also accredited to award the same Master of Arts degree to qualified non-resident students who complete the Fleet Seminar Program, are admitted to the non-resident Graduate Degree Program, and who then complete the Electives Program requirements for the degree.

Academic Year

NWC convocations are traditionally scheduled in August, and the majority of students graduate the following June. However, two smaller classes of senior and intermediate-grade U.S. officers begin their academic years in either the winter or spring trimesters, which begin in November and February/March.

The 10-month curriculum for resident students is divided into trimesters of three to four months. Additionally, three abbreviated 12-day core curriculum courses are offered annually for U.S. military reservists.

Core Curriculum The Naval War College has three core teaching departments: Strategy and Policy; National Security Affairs; and Joint Military Operations, each with separate faculty. Each department teaches one Intermediate-level Course (ILC) and one Senior-level Course (SLC).

Strategy and Policy Department
The Strategy and Policy curriculum teaches students to think strategically and prepare them for positions of strategic leadership. Strategy is the relationship between war’s purpose, objective, and means. The course is designed to sharpen the student’s ability to assess how alternative strategic courses of action achieve broad, national-level objectives. Students will think in a disciplined, critical, and original manner about the international strategic environment, about a range of potential strategies, and about the strategic effects of joint, interagency, and multinational operations.

Joint Military Operations Department
The Joint Military Operations curriculum focuses on joint war fighting at the theater-strategic and operational levels of war. The JMO course prepares future military and civilian leaders for high-level policy, command, and staff positions requiring joint planning expertise and joint warfighting skills. It emphasizes the theory and practice of operational art in terms of maritime and joint forces. JMO students will learn to apply operational art, the joint operation planning process and critical thinking skills in a seminar environment to employ joint forces to achieve a broad array of objectives. Extensive faculty and student interaction fosters professional attitudes and perspectives essential to successful military operations.

National Security Affairs Department

The Department of National Security Affairs (NSA) is one of the nation’s largest and most vibrant graduate teaching departments in national and international security studies. Our curricular philosophy is rooted in the importance of blending both intellectual rigor and professional relevance to our students. Reflecting this educational approach, our faculty comprises a diverse blend of scholars, practitioners, and active duty military officers. Each of our two main core courses offers a broad survey in contemporary security studies with multidisciplinary foundations in international relations, regional studies, foreign policy analysis, strategic leadership, and other fields. Common areas of study include: the international system; regional security dynamics; national strategy; force planning; the nature of economic, political, organizational, and behavioral factors that influence decision-making process within complex national security organizations; and, the challenges associated with leadership at the strategic or theater strategic levels. The senior-level National Security Decision Making (NSDM) course focuses on strategic-level issues, while the intermediate-level Theater Security Decision Making (TSDM) course places particular emphasis on regional security challenges. Both courses use a “Levels of Analysis” framework with parallel modules in Security Strategies (international/systemic level), Policy Analysis (national/organizational/societal level), and Leadership Concepts (individual level). The courses feature “practitioner sessions” in which senior practitioners engage students on key course themes, and each culminates in a capstone Final Exercise (FX) that challenges students to integrate course concepts.

NPME Outcomes

Senior-Level NPME Outcomes:
- Skilled in Formulating and Executing Strategy & U.S. Policy
- Skilled in Joint Warfighting, Theater Strategy & Campaign Planning
- Capable of Strategically-Minded Critical Thinking
- Capable of Excelling in Positions of Strategic Leadership

Intermediate-Level NPME Outcomes:
- Skilled in applying operational art (OPART) to Maritime, Joint, Interagency, & Multinational Warfighting
- Skilled in Joint/Navy Planning Process
- Capable of Critical Thought with Operational Perspectives
Symposia and Conferences

The academic life at the Naval War College is enhanced by several conferences and symposia. Some are held annually and some are held less frequently. These programs afford students and faculty opportunities for stimulating encounters with contemporary military, political and cultural leaders from both the professional and academic communities.

Current Strategy Forum

The Current Strategy Forum is an academic year capstone event hosted annually by the Secretary of the Navy to discuss current military policy revolving around a pre-determined theme. The Chief of Naval Operations and the Commandant of the Marine Corps appear and provide snapshots of where their respective services are in the area of military operations, and where their services will be going in the near future. Prominent civilians from leading academic institutions also speak on topics ranging from the global economy to historical patterns. The civilian expertise provides students a new lens through which to view military operations.

International Seapower Symposium

The biennial International Seapower Symposium (ISS) brings together heads of many of the free world’s navies as a catalyst to fostering international understanding. Held during the fall trimester, the Chief of Naval Operations invites the heads of navies and distinguished international naval leaders to discuss relevant challenges and opportunities and to enhance common bonds of friendship. ISS provides a forum for maritime and naval leaders to exchange ideas with the leadership of the U.S. Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard and with the NWC faculty. The program features briefings and opportunities for international leaders to speak. Many of them are graduates of the Naval War College’s Naval Command College or Naval Staff College.

Ethics Program

Ethics symposia and discussions scheduled throughout the year focus students and faculty on the professional military ethic. Each year the ethics program is built around a core theme as well as weaving themes and questions of ethics throughout the core curriculum. The college invites guest speakers from academic institutions, the military and other professions to discuss contemporary issues dealing with the professional military ethic.

ACADEMIC POLICY

The intent of founding president, Rear Adm. Luce and the college's thirty-seventh president, Vice Adm. Stansfield Turner constitutes the strategic tradition and purpose of the Naval War College and the driving force of the college's approach to education and research, analysis, and gaming. This strategic tradition is more than rhetorical; it has a very practical and abiding influence in everything the college does. The flag-level, senior-level, intermediate-level, and primary-level professional military education programs designed, developed and delivered by the college are not intended to prepare officers for a specific follow-on assignment, but rather to provide a systematic way to develop leaders and to improve and discipline the way they think. These educational opportunities foster the required mental flexibility and discipline to cope effectively with the intellectual demands inherent in positions of increasingly significant responsibility within the broader national security community in the United States and that of our friends and allies. This intellectual flexibility cannot be obtained solely from a survey course in current international security issues or from a detailed examination of current weapons acquisition and force posture concerns. Instead, intellectual flexibility must flow from a clear understanding of the fundamental principles that have governed our nation's national security concerns during peace and war.

Admission Policy Resident military students of the College of Naval Warfare and the Naval Command College are Lieutenant Colonels, Colonels, Commanders, and Captains, from all Services and invited countries, with approximately sixteen to eighteen years of commissioned service, while resident students of the College of Naval Command and Staff and Naval Staff College are Majors or Lieutenant Commanders, from all services and invited countries, with approximately twelve years of commissioned service. The Naval War College does not directly select its military students. The selection is made by each Service, with the criteria within each Service being very similar. In the case of the Navy, candidates for attendance are chosen from officers selected for promotion to Lieutenant Commander, Commander, and Captain. This selection is based on professional performance and a clear potential for higher responsibilities. Subject to rank waiver approval by NAVPERSCOM, a limited number of Lieutenants can attend the College of Naval Command and Staff. Similarly, a limited number of Lieutenant Commanders can attend the College of Naval Warfare provided they have already completed JPME I requirements.
Additionally, every academic year selected departments and agencies are invited to nominate civilian applicants in the grades of GS-14/15 or equivalent for admission to the College of Naval Warfare and civilian applicants in the grade of GS-13 or equivalent for admission to the College of Naval Command and Staff. Admission for civilian students nominated to the resident program requires a formal application to the Naval War College. The Registrar and the Academic Department Heads screen and recommend applicants based on their academic accomplishments, professional achievements and their potential to complete the program. The Associate Provost is the approval authority for civilian student admission. A minimum of a Bachelor’s Degree and letters of recommendation from the applicant’s department or agency are required. Additional requirements for admission may be found on the U.S. Resident Student page of the Naval War College website.

Navy officers in the rank of lieutenant through captain (O-3 through O-6), or other service officers in the grade of O-4 through O-6, may be selected for participation in the College of Distance Education (CDE) programs. These programs include the Fleet Seminar Program (FSP), the Web-enabled Program, the CDROM-based Program, and the Naval War College at Naval Post Graduate School Program. Admission to the Fleet Seminar Program, Web-enabled Program, and CDROM-based Program requires formal application through the College of Distance Education. Officers are screened and selected based on their academic accomplishments and potential to complete the program. A minimum of a bachelor’s degree is required. Web-enabled Program students must possess or have ready access to the appropriate computer equipment and the World Wide Web/Internet. The curriculum for these programs is derived from, and closely parallels the accredited resident curricula, and is composed of the same three core courses; Joint Maritime Operations (JMO); Theater Security Decision Making (TSDM); and Strategy and War (S&W). Additionally, a growing list of elective courses is available through the College of Distance Education.

Students enrolled in the Fleet Seminar Program are eligible to apply for the accredited Master's Degree in National Security and Strategic Studies. Students who complete any part, or all, of either the CDROM-based or Web-enabled Programs are not eligible for the master's degree, and no credit from these programs may be transferred to the M.A. degree. Prior to submission of an application to the Graduate Degree Program (GDP), a student must have their bachelor's degree transcripts submitted by the granting institution, and must submit two reference letters as part of the GDP application package. One of the two reference letters must be from a Naval War College faculty member. The Graduate Degree Program Admissions Board reviews all student GDP applications and recommends worthy candidates for selection to the Dean of Academic Affairs, who then makes the final selections.

Examination and Grading

U.S. Resident Students
All U.S. resident students in the College of Naval Warfare (CNW) and the College of Naval Command and Staff (CNC&S) will be examined and graded in the three trimester studies prescribed by the departments of Strategy and Policy (S&P), National Security Affairs (NSA), and Joint Military Operations (JMO). The final academic grade will be derived by equally weighting and averaging numerical results obtained in the three trimesters. In the Electives Program, students will be graded on a High Pass/Pass/Fail basis. Each student must take one elective course per trimester from an elective Area of Study that will require an allocation of about 20% of his/her effort, with the balance being directed to the prescribed program. All prescribed, elective, and special program requirements must be satisfactorily completed prior to graduation. Exceptions to this policy will be approved only by the Dean of Academic Affairs after administrative review of the particular circumstances involved. Department chairs and the Associate Dean of Academics for Electives and Directed Research are responsible for notifying the Dean of Academic Affairs and the registrar, in writing, immediately upon learning of an incompletion on the part of a student. This notification will include a statement of circumstances and a departmental recommendation.

International Students

Naval Command College

Senior-level international students in the Naval Command College (NCC) are fully integrated in CNW, attending seminars and lectures with their U.S. counterparts. They complete classes, seminar exercises, and writing assignments in JMO and S&P; and international officers complete a team project in NSA.

International officers may voluntarily take all exams. The faculty evaluates their academic work and provides substantive, written feedback, but does not assign grades to these products. Additionally, the Field Studies Program is designed to give a balanced understanding of the United States culture and institutions as well as American political, social, and economic life. It also provides an increased awareness of the basic issues of internationally recognized human rights. International officers are also encouraged to participate in the Electives Program. They receive graduate level credit for courses completed at the Naval War College which can be applied to Master's Degree programs at local universities.

Naval Staff College

Intermediate-level international officer students in the ten-month NSC course (NSC-10) are fully integrated in CNC&S, attending seminars and lectures alongside their U.S. counterparts. They complete classes and seminar exercises and writing assignments in JMO and S&W; international officers complete a team project rather than individual papers in TSDM. They may voluntarily take exams. The faculty evaluates their academic work and provides substantive, written feedback, but does not assign grades to these products. Additionally, the Field Studies Program, designed to promote understanding of U.S. culture and institutions as well as American political, social, and economic life, is an integral element of their core, educational program. International officers are highly encouraged to participate in the Electives Program.

Nonresident Students

Intermediate-level Program students

Nonresident students of the College of Distance Education (CDE) must complete specialized versions of the three core courses of Joint Maritime Operations, Theater Security Decision Making, and Strategy and Warfare that have been modified to meet the constraints of the educational methodology associated with the specific program. Completion of electives is not required for nonresident students. Nonresident students in the Graduate Degree Program must successfully complete nine semester hours of elective work from the NWC or a regionally-accredited college or university in an elective area of study to be eligible for the master of arts degree. These elective courses must be approved by the director, CDE and the associate provost for electives and directed research prior to commencing work.

Primary, Basic, and Introductory-level PME Program students

Students in the Primary, Basic, or Introductory-level PME courses must successfully complete each of the course’s modules. The courses are designed to take respectively about 75, 40, and 20 hours of online work to complete. The PME courses are provided via Navy Knowledge Online (NKO) Integrated Learning Environment (ILE). The Primary PME course is designed for naval officers in the grade of ensign to lieutenant, navy senior enlisted leaders in the grades of chief or senior chief, and their equivalent DoN civilians. The Basic Course is for E-4 to E-6, and the Introductory for E-1 to E-3. Upon completion, students’ Electronic Training Jackets are automatically annotated having completed the course.

Grades

All of the NWC academic programs have a required, core curriculum, which meets the Navy and Joint PME requirements for its respective level. The prescribed curriculum for resident students in the intermediate and senior-level programs also includes an elective area of study. Students in the nonresident Graduate Degree Program must also complete the elective requirements.

Senior-level PME with JPME Phase II

The academic program consists of a core curriculum, consisting of Joint Military Operations, National Security Decision Making, Strategy and Policy, prescribed academic conferences, the Speakers Program, and an elective area of study consisting of three elective courses.
Intermediate-level PME with JPME Phase I
For resident and nonresident graduate degree program students, the academic program consists of a core course, including Theater Security Decision Making, Strategy and War, and Joint Maritime Operations, prescribed academic conferences, and an elective area of study consisting of three elective courses. For all other nonresident intermediate-level programs, the core, academic program consists of Theater Security Decision Making, Strategy and War, and Joint Maritime Operations.

Primary PME with JPME
The curriculum flow is Introduction, Culture of the Navy, Governance of the Navy, How the Navy Thinks About War, How the Navy Plans its Operations, Technology and Warfare in the Maritime Domain, and the Conclusion. Designed to develop a shared understanding of Navy capabilities for the joint war fight by the Navy’s deck plate-level leaders, the officer and senior enlisted versions share a common core curriculum supplemented by some specific focused material.

Grading
Except for the electives program, all work in the prescribed curricula for the intermediate and senior-level programs will be graded using the following standards:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Letter Grade</th>
<th>Numeric Range</th>
<th>Numeric Equivalent</th>
<th>Description</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>A+</td>
<td>97-100</td>

Grades assigned by instructors for papers, examinations, exercises, and seminar preparation/contribution will be expressed in whole numbers or in letter grades and their numeric equivalent from the scale above. Since the grade of F covers a large numeric range, a specific numeric grade between 0 and 59 must be assigned. Student work that is not completed will receive a numeric grade of zero (0).

Unexcused tardy student work, that is work turned in past the deadline without previous permission by the instructor, will receive a grade not greater than C+ (78). Student work determined to be in violation of the academic honor code will receive a grade of F. The college’s Academic Integrity Board will assign an accompanying numeric grade to the F. Though it may not be applicable to all cases, a grade of zero (0) will be assigned as a matter of practice. Final course grades will be expressed as the unrounded numerical average, to two decimal places, along with corresponding letter grades with pluses or minuses, as appropriate.

Expected Grade Distribution
Historical evidence indicates that a grade distribution of 35%-45% “As” and 55%-65% “Bs” and below can be expected from the overall NWC student population. While variations from this norm might occur from seminar to seminar and subject to subject, it would rarely if ever be expected to reach an overall “A” to “B and below ratio of greater than or equal to an even 50/50 distribution.

Weighting of Course Components
As a rule, at least 60% of a final course grade must be derived from written work. Within this guideline, department chairs and Advanced Research Program (ARP) coordinators will announce the weights attached to each course component (e.g., exams, essays, papers, seminar preparation/participation, etc.) at the beginning of each trimester. It is the responsibility of department chairs, ARP coordinators, and individual instructors to ensure that students understand weighting of course components and the grading system at the outset of each course.

Resident Course Electives Program
All work in the Electives Program will be graded on a High Pass/Pass/Fail scale using the following standards:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Grade</th>
<th>Description</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>High Pass</td>
<td>Work of very high quality that is clearly indicative of performance above the average expected of graduate-level student.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pass</td>
<td>Expected performance of a graduate-level student in meeting all course requirements.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fail</td>
<td>Unsatisfactory performance to include failure to meet all course requirements.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Elective grades will not be a component of a student’s final academic standing, but satisfactory performance in the Electives Program is required for graduation.

Advanced Research Program
The Advanced Research Program offers highly qualified students the opportunity to participate in one of several collaborative research groups as well as substitute an in-depth research project for some other segment of the academic program. Selected students may join an already established research group, and at the direction of the group’s faculty mentors, participate in the development research and analysis products of that group. Alternatively, select students can either develop a topic or choose from a list of pre-approved topics from which a major research paper is completed in place of one of two core courses.

Advanced Studies in Naval Strategy

U.S. Naval officers will earn the Naval Strategist Subspecialty Code, (SSC) 2300P upon successful completion of:

a) The three core academic courses in either the intermediate or senior in-residence JPME programs at the U.S. Naval War College;
   b) The Advanced Studies in Naval Strategy elective program and Area of Study (AOS 23) (120 hours of seminar work supported by 240 hours of preparation);
   c) An additional period of structured interaction with practitioners of naval, military, and national strategy in support of these electives (20-30 hours in a focused discussion with guest practitioners, supported by appropriate hours of preparation);
   d) An approved graduate level thesis of 45 pages on a subject of strategic import to the U.S. Navy; and,
   e) A focused 10-week capstone project developing products tailored to U.S. Naval Strategic issues and/or relevant regional exposure to geographical areas of interest to the Navy.

The Navy has determined there is a need for officers skilled in the practice of formulating, developing, and executing strategy at various leadership levels in order to fill key billets in Navy, Joint, and high-level political staffs. The U.S. Naval War College is one of several professional schools or university programs designed to produce such a cadre of officers educated in the study and application of Naval Strategy. Students will be selected in advance of arrival at Newport and begin the program in the Fall Term.

The core academic curriculum at NWC provides a broad graduate-level education in the interaction of strategy and policy, Joint military operations, and the security environment in which policy choices are made. Graduates have a strong understanding of civil-military relations, national military, defense, and security policies, the evolving security environment (to include the cyber domain), the formulation and conduct of Joint operations, the importance of culture for operations and policy, the strategic effects of operations, and foundational works on strategy and strategic concepts applied across history, regions, and all forms of warfare.

NWC’s Advanced Studies in Naval Strategy (ASNS) (AOS 23) builds on this intensive academic program, by adding a ten month double elective course, and additionally requires completion of a 45 page master’s thesis, and a ten week summer practicum. This special advanced program is taught by the very best NWC faculty drawn from many expert faculty members at the college. The ANSP curriculum includes interaction with nationally known academics and leaders, and includes instruction on the following topics: Origins of War and Societal Conflict, International

A programmatic component labeled the Practicum falling within the purview and academic schedule of AOS 23 will, on roughly a bi-weekly basis, bring in distinguished civilian and military practitioners of the formulation and execution of strategy for focused discussion on vital contemporary topics in strategy. Preparatory readings and structured learning objectives are developed for each session. When practical and as funding allows, students will also visit practitioners in Washington and conduct other travel.

A summer program will offer the opportunity to work with such groups as the Office of Net Assessment in Newport, travel, and work on strategic project initiatives of interest to the U.S. Navy, and will teach students to apply their academic and practitioner knowledge to real-world issues. Each summer program will be tailored to available opportunities and student interest. Students will examine in-depth special issues, working in small groups under the leadership of faculty from NWC and practitioners, producing products of practical import and feeding back to the issue sponsor. Student travel may be involved where necessary and feasible.

Throughout the 13-month program, students will work on a major thesis, which will be coordinated across the subject matter, requirements, and professors of the Electives, the Practicum, and the Summer Study Project. The thesis will demonstrate true originality, quality of strategic thought, and the ability to develop practical, real-world, and yet innovative solutions to complex problems of enduring and vital interest to the Navy.

Each year the elective program, the practicum component, and summer projects will be re-examined to determine the best outcome for this advanced educational program.

Degree & Diploma Requirements

Resident Students

U.S. resident students in the CNW or CNC&S who earn a final grade of B- or above in each core course (or an approved Advanced Research Program in lieu of one of the core courses), and who pass three elective courses, are awarded the Naval War College Master of Arts degree and are also eligible for JPME certification (CNW ~ Phase II and CNC&S ~ Phase I). Resident students from the CNW and the CNC&S who complete the three core courses (or an approved Advanced Research Program in lieu of one of the core courses), with an overall average grade of B- or better and not more than one course grade in the “C” category, and who pass three elective courses are eligible for the NWC diploma and the appropriate JPME certification.
The core courses in the College of Naval Warfare are worth 8 credit hours and each of the three electives are worth 2 credit hours for a total of 30 credit hours. In the College of Naval Command and Staff, Theater Security Decision Making and Strategy and Warfare are worth 7 credit hours and Joint Maritime Operations is worth 10 credit hours while each of the three electives are worth 2 credit hours for a total of 30 credit hours.

U.S. resident students in the CNW who have already earned a NWC Master of Arts degree in National Security and Strategic Studies through prior attendance in the CNC&S or through the CDE Graduate Degree Program will not be eligible to receive a second Master of Arts degree. Assuming the grade requirements above are met, these students will receive the NWC diploma with JPME II certification. These students will also earn 30 graduate level semester hours (eight per core course and two per elective each semester) that they may apply towards other graduate programs either concurrently or after completion of the academic year.

College of Distance Education
Successful completion of the non-resident, intermediate-level Fleet Seminar Program is recognized by the award of the NWC CNC&S diploma and JPME Phase I certification. Fleet Seminar students, who have been accepted in the Graduate Degree Program and earn a final grade of B- or above in each core course and complete nine graduate semester hours of approved elective courses, are also awarded the Naval War College Master of Arts degree in National Security and Strategic Studies. Successful completion of other nonresident, intermediate-level programs is recognized by the award of the College of Distance Education diploma and JPME Phase I certification. To earn either the Naval War College CNC&S diploma or the College of Distance Education diploma, a student must complete all three core courses with an overall grade average of “B-” or better and not more than one course grade in the “C” category. For the JPME Phase I certification and diploma, all the CDE program courses are interchangeable, and indeed the Fleet Seminar Program (FSP) courses are accepted for credit for students who may subsequently attend the NWC in residence.

Transcripts and Transfer Credit

Transcripts
In the case of resident and non-resident students, upon written request to the registrar, an official transcript showing numerical and letter grades will be provided to other educational institutions.

Transfer Credit
The policy of the Naval War College is not to accept transfer credit for courses completed at another institution in fulfillment of any portion of the resident NWC curriculum. Transfer credit up to nine hours as required by the Nonresident Graduate Degree Program of the College of Distance Education will be accepted upon the approval of the Associate Dean of Academics for Electives and Directed Research.
Academic Recognition

Honors are bestowed as recognition of outstanding academic achievement and as a means to further encourage sound scholarship. This honor, based upon graduation grade point-average, becomes part of the official record, is awarded upon graduation and appears on the transcript, the diploma, military fitness and evaluation reports, and other documents which convey a student’s academic accomplishment. Two categories are awarded for superior scholarship in work leading to the master’s degree. Students whose final grade point average (GPA) stands them numerically within the top 20% of their graduating cohort—November, March, and June—will be designated as having earned distinction. In determining degrees of distinction within the cohort, students in the top 5% of their class will be designated on their diploma and transcripts as having graduated with highest distinction, and students comprising the next 15% will be designated as having graduated with distinction. In no case will a GPA of less than 90% (A-) earn distinction status.

Those students participating in tailored curriculum programs, composed of a combination of prescribed courses and special research programs, as approved by the Dean of Academic Affairs, may also be eligible for a distinguished graduate designation.

When a mathematical distinction between students cannot be made, the proportions stipulated above may be exceeded. Successful completion of the electives program is a prerequisite to eligibility for either of these honors. Fleet Seminar students compete for honors in similar fashion as resident students but are compared only within their fleet seminar cohort in making this determination. For Web enabled and CD-ROM based students, distinction and highest distinction are determined using as a reference the GPA from the most recent resident College of Naval Command and Staff June graduating cohort. Faculty members participating in NWC academic programs will be eligible for academic honors. However, such faculty designation will not be calculated in the student percentages cited above so as not to deprive any full-time student of this opportunity.

In the case in which students complete graduation requirements through a combination of Residence and Fleet Seminar Program, distinction determination will be based upon the program in which the student is enrolled at the time of completion.

Academic Awards

Many varied and prestigious awards are available for professional writing and research by students, allowing an excellent opportunity for professional recognition. Faculty members provide an important link to ensure that students are made aware of these opportunities and to encourage participation. Department chairs, the director of CDE, and faculty are encouraged to screen papers prepared as an academic requirement and, when warranted, provide constructive criticism and motivation to facilitate student submissions for award competition. The staff judge advocate provides the Dean of Academic Affairs with an ethics review when requested in the case of a special academic award. A short description of awards is given below for faculty Faculty members should note that papers entered into competition which are the product of a Naval War College academic requirement may fall into the category of “government works” that are not subject to copyright and may be used by U.S. government agencies as desired. Honorable mention awards or certificates are presented in nearly every category if, in the opinion of the respective award committee, additional essays deserve special recognition. All essays must have been written while the student was enrolled in a Naval War College course, either as a resident or as a nonresident student.

- The Navy League of the United States annually sponsors awards to the two resident students graduating in June who demonstrate a high degree of academic, extracurricular, and community service. The award presented to the student of the College of Naval Warfare is known as the Stephen Bleecker Luce Award; that presented to the student of the College of Naval Command and Staff is known as the William Sowden Sims Award.
- The President’s Award for CNW and CNC&S Honor Graduates in the March and November classes is presented at the respective graduation ceremony to those students who demonstrate a high degree of academic, extracurricular, and community service.
- The Admiral Richard G. Colbert Memorial Prize is a cash prize ($1,000) and certificate awarded annually by the Naval War College Foundation to the author of the best professional essay that focuses on an economic, military, political, strategic, or tactical aspect of an appropriate professional topic.
- The J. William Middendorf II Award for Student Research is awarded annually to a student or group of students whose research project is considered to have made the most significant contribution in a field related to strategic or tactical concepts, logistics, or readiness. Recipients receive a certificate and a $1,000 prize.
- The Naval War College Foundation Award recognizes the student whose essay is considered to have made the most significant contribution to some aspect of maritime strategy or the operational level of warfare. A certificate and a $1,000 cash prize are presented.
- The B. Franklin Reinauer II Defense Economics Prize is given for the essay considered to have made the most significant contribution to understanding of the relationship between national security and economics. The recipient receives a certificate and a $1,000 cash prize.
- The Jerome E. Levy Economic Geography and World Order Prize recognizes the best research product that fundamentally addresses and proposes potential solutions in the disciplines of economic geography and national/international security.
- The Michael Handel Strategy Prize Essay Award is awarded to a student who writes an original essay for the final examination in the resident intermediate- and senior-level Strategy and Policy Course. This essay must exhibit qualities that Professor Handel especially prized in strategic analysis: it will be well-written; it will systematically examine a difficult, recurring strategic question that derives insights from both history and strategic theory; and it will reflect a true dispassionate analysis of the issue. The Strategy and Policy faculty will nominate exceptional examination essays for consideration by the prize committee.
- The Vice Admiral James H. Doyle, Jr., Military Operations and International Law Prize recognizes the essay considered to have made the most significant contribution on the role of international law in military operations during peacetime or armed conflict. Sponsored by the Naval War College Foundation, the award consists of a $500 cash prize and an inscribed certificate for one U.S. and one international officer.

• The annual Marine Corps Association Award is presented for the best professional essay on topics relating to the Marine Corps or Marine Corps operations. The $500 cash award, provided by the Marine Corps Association, and a certificate are presented.

• The Director of Naval Intelligence (DNI) and the Director of the Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA), respectively, sponsor Intelligence Directors’ Essay Awards for the best professionally worthy essays on some aspect of naval or maritime intelligence and joint or national intelligence. The awards consist of Office of Naval Intelligence and Defense Intelligence Agency plaques.

• The Armed Forces Communications and Electronics Association Award (AFCEA) recognizes the best professional essay in the areas of Avionics, Command and Control, Computers, Communications, Electronic Warfare, Electronics, Radar, Satellites, and Intelligence Systems. Operations research papers or other student submissions developing these subjects are considered for the competition. Recipients of the award receive a certificate describing the accomplishment and a table clock.

• International students attending the Naval Command College are eligible to compete for the Robert E. Batemans International Prize Essay Award sponsored by the Naval War College Foundation. The essay must represent original thinking on some aspect of force planning, or current operational or strategic issues of maritime interest with an international dimension. The award consists of a $1,000 cash prize and an inscribed certificate.

• The annual Zimmerman/Gray International Essay Award is given for the best of the professionally worthy papers submitted by a student in the Naval Staff College full-year course of study. The award consists of a perpetual plaque displayed at the Naval War College bearing the winner’s name. Recipients of the award are also given a suitably inscribed certificate describing their accomplishment and a cash prize provided through the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Gilson Gray and the Naval War College Foundation. The award is named in honor of their fathers, CDR Donald Zimmerman, USN, and CDR Gilson B. Gray, Jr., USN, both career naval aviators who saw combat duty during World War II.

• The Captain Walter B. Woodson, Jr., USN, Academic Memorial Prize was established in memory of the individual who served as the Executive Director of the Naval War College Foundation from 1973 to 1993. It is awarded to a Naval Staff College student for the best paper on a topic relating to force planning or strategic issues of maritime interest. Sponsored by the Naval War College Foundation through the generosity of Captain Woodson’s many friends, the prize is presented at the graduation ceremonies in June and December.

• The Naval Submarine League Prize recognizes the best essay or research paper submitted related to submarine warfare by a resident student at the Naval War College.

• The Naval War College Review Prizes are sponsored by the Naval War College Foundation for works published in the Naval War College Review. The three best feature articles appearing in the Review during a calendar year are awarded cash prizes. Historically oriented feature articles of maritime interest may also be considered for the Edward S. Miller History Prize. Authors may, but need not, have an affiliation with the Naval War College.

- Each year the Naval War College Foundation sponsors a monetary award to an outstanding College of Distance Education Fleet Seminar Program graduate demonstrating high standards of academic performance, professionalism, and community service. This award is known as the McGinnis Family Award for Outstanding Performance in Fleet Seminar Education.
- The Foundation also presents the Vice Admiral John T. Hayward Award for Outstanding Performance in Correspondence Education to a graduate of the College of Distance Education Web-enabled Program, or the CDROM-based Program who displays the highest overall standard of academic performance during his/her enrollment. The final course must have been completed prior to 1 June of the year the award is presented. Each award consists of a $1,000 cash prize and a plaque or certificate.
- Annually the Naval War College presents the Vice Admiral Charles “Soc” McMorris Award to the top graduate of the Maritime Advanced Warfighting School, based on grade point average, faculty evaluation, and peer recommendations. The award is presented at MAWS graduation in September.

Academic Honor Code The Naval War College diligently enforces a strict academic code requiring students to credit properly the source of materials directly cited in any written work submitted in fulfillment of diploma/degree requirements. Simply put: plagiarism is prohibited. Likewise, this academic code prohibits cheating and the misrepresentation of a paper as a student’s original thought. Plagiarism, cheating, and misrepresentation are inconsistent with the professional standards required of all military personnel and government employees.

Furthermore, in the case of U.S. military officers, such conduct clearly violates the “Exemplary Conduct Standards” delineated in Title 10, U.S. Code, Sections 3583 (U.S. Army), 5947 (U.S. Naval Service), and 8583 (U.S. Air Force).

If written work is submitted which appears to violate the Academic Honor Code, the faculty or staff member will notify the executive assistant of the department concerned or the director, College of Distance Education as appropriate. The department will investigate the matter to determine whether or not there is substantial evidence of a violation. If there is substantial evidence, the chair of the department or the director, College of Distance Education will refer the matter to the Dean of Academic Affairs. A complete explanation of the Academic Honor code and its related procedures can be found in the Faculty Handbook (2013).

ACADEMIC DEPARTMENTS AND COURSES The Naval War College maintains three academic departments and the Navy's advanced warfighting school: Strategy and Policy, National Security Affairs, Joint Military Operations, and the Maritime Advanced Warfighting School. The Strategy and Policy department is designed to teach students strategic thinking; National Security Affairs is designed to teach students about effective leadership and decision making; Joint Military Operations is designed to teach joint war fighting at the theater-strategic and operational levels; and the Maritime Advanced Warfighting School prepares students of all Military Services for immediate assignment as operational planners and down-range operational command billets.

The College also offers elective courses and two-week courses to reserve officers.

Strategy and Policy (S&P) Department

The Strategy and Policy Department teaches students to think strategically and conduct critical analysis to thereby become leaders skilled at making sound judgments in the joint, interagency, and multinational decision-making environments. The intermediate- and senior-level courses on strategy are considered the best in professional military education and serve as a model for programs on strategic studies offered at world-class universities. Dr. Paul Kennedy, Yale University’s Director of International Security Studies, recently remarked that, “The Grand Strategy year-long course at Yale is fundamentally a copy-cat version of the Strategy and Policy course at Newport.” Similarly, Sir Hew Strachan, Chichele Professor of the History of War at Oxford University, observed this program “has been an inspiration and influence beyond the United States, and it remains a model…to think about strategy, to give it context, and above all how to do it sensibly.” This reputation for excellence is well-deserved and rests on the professionalism and passion of a gifted faculty.

The intermediate- and senior-level strategy courses are rigorous and challenging. Students learn to think about the relationship between power and statecraft in a disciplined, analytical, and original manner. In their preparation for positions of strategic leadership, students master the meaning of a wide range of classical and contemporary strategic concepts. Landmark works on strategy and war—such as Clausewitz’s On War, Sun Tzu’s Art of War, Thucydides’ Peloponnesian War, Mao’s On Protracted War, and Douhet’s Command of the Air—provide a foundation for strategic analysis. Students also study classic works of sea power and maritime strategy including Mahan’s Influence of Sea Power Upon History and Corbett’s Some Principles of Maritime Strategy to better understand the conduct of war at sea and its strategic effects. By in-depth critical analysis of a wide range of case studies, students examine the decision making of strategic leaders. Vice Admiral Stansfield Turner emphasized the importance of in-depth examinations of historical case studies for a course on strategy: “Studying historical examples should enable us to view current issues and trends through a broader perspective of the basic elements of strategy. Approaching today’s problems through a study of the past is one way to ensure that we do not become trapped within the limits of our own experience.”

The strategy courses combine the key strengths of a graduate education in the liberal arts and a professional school program of study. Educating leaders in strategy entails an innovative interdisciplinary approach, drawing on the disciplines of history, political science, international relations, ethics, culture and regional studies, and economics. The courses presented by the Strategy and Policy Department integrate academic perspectives with critical military factors from the profession of arms, such as leadership, doctrine, technology, and logistics. The resulting synthesis prepares students for positions of strategic leadership by providing them with a coherent frame of analysis to assess complex strategic problems and formulate strategies to address them. The Strategy and Policy Department provides an education that is meant to be of enduring value for someone serving in the profession of arms and as a national security professional.

Strategy & Policy (S&P): Senior Level Course on Grand Strategy

The senior-level course emphasizes grand strategy and employs case studies that are distinctive in three respects. First, the course examines the dynamics and effects of long-term strategic competition. Such conflicts often entail protracted periods of intense fighting that produce truces and peace settlements, interwar and prewar eras, as well as cold war conflicts and crises leading to war. This dynamic provides an opportunity to consider the long-term effectiveness of all instruments of national power. Second, the case studies and strategic thinkers featured in the reading list examine diverse types of wars, encompassing a variety of operations and different keys to success. Success in one kind of conflict may be followed by failure in another; thus, an important aspect of strategic leadership is the ability to adapt. Third, this course analyzes the strategic success and failure of great and regional powers as well as non-state actors over long periods of time. It contrasts maritime powers with land powers, exploring the different strategies open to them, and examines the resiliency of different kinds of political systems. The Strategy and Policy Course examines conflicts of various sizes, shapes, types, and combinations. Three basic types of war stand out in our syllabus: big (and protracted) wars fought for high stakes by the most powerful states of the international system, often as part of coalitions and in multiple theaters; regional wars fought within a single theater (or two contiguous theaters), typically of shorter duration than big wars; and insurgencies fought within a country against a failing, emerging, or well-established state by a non-state or sub-state movement that seeks to impose a new political system. Every case study in this course incorporates at least two of these basic types of war, and some case studies include all three types.

Strategy & War (S&W): Intermediate Level Course on Strategy

The task for strategists and planners in translating operational outcomes into enduring strategic results is never easy or straightforward. The Strategy and War Course examines how the overall strategic environment shapes operational choices and outcomes. In turn, the course also examines the strategic effects of operations, exploring how battlefield outcomes can change the strategic environment. Operational success in war, for example, might open up new strategic opportunities. Operational failures might close off promising strategic courses of action. The interaction between the operational use of military force and strategic outcomes can lead to unanticipated results. The history of warfare provides many examples of disproportionate military victories that were largely unforeseen by planners. Alternatively, the commitment of large numbers of forces and huge resources does not ensure strategic success. Students examine how unanticipated second- and third-order effects frustrate planners who seek to dominate the battlefield and the course of operations.

Of course, in war the enemy always seeks to frustrate the best-laid plans and impose high risks and costs on operations. The Strategy and War Course emphasizes that a war’s outcome is contingent upon the actions taken by those engaged in the fighting. A skillful adversary seeks to exploit strategic vulnerabilities and operational missteps. Further, an enemy’s capabilities might prove difficult to overcome. Asymmetric strategies and capabilities can create an operational environment that frustrates decisive outcomes. Skilled strategists thus understand that the enemy has a vote in determining the war’s outcome. The Strategy and War Course gives critical attention to how an enemy’s actions form part of the dynamic, violent interaction that is the test of war.

National Security Affairs (NSA) Department

The National Security Affairs (NSA) Department teaches two primary core courses that engage the complexities of the contemporary and emerging national security environment. The National Security Decision Making (NSDM) course is designed for senior military officers and U.S. Government civilians and offers a broad security studies curriculum that focuses on the national strategic level. The Theater Security Decision Making (TSDM) course is designed for intermediate military officers and U.S. Government civilians and also offers a general security studies curriculum, but focuses heavily on the theater strategic level (with particular emphasis on the role and challenges of the U.S. geographic combatant commands). Both courses approach the study of national security affairs at three levels of analysis through distinctive sub-courses in Security Strategies, Policy Analysis, and Leadership Concepts, and a culminating exercise in which students bring these levels of analysis together. Common areas of study include the effective selection and leadership of military forces in the context of constrained national resources, strategic planning and selection of future military forces and their potential use as an instrument of national power, the nature of economic, political, organizational, and behavioral factors that affect the decision making process within complex national security organizations, and the challenges associated with leadership beyond the tactical and operational levels.

National Security Decision Making (NSDM): Senior Level Course

The National Security Decision Making (NSDM) course educates senior military officers and U.S. government civilians in the College of Naval Warfare and Naval Command College on effective decision making and leadership on national security issues, focusing primarily at the strategic level. Focus areas include strategic planning and selection of future military forces and their potential use as one tool of national power; the nature of economic, political, organizational, and behavioral factors affecting national security decisions within complex national security organizations, with particular emphasis on the Department of Defense and its role in the interagency process; enhancing strategic thinking skills and understanding of the role, formulation, and implementation of U.S. national security strategies; and exploring the unique challenges that characterize leadership at the strategic level. The course philosophy reflects the belief that effective strategic leaders must synthesize many academic disciplines and professional experiences. The course therefore approaches national security studies from three distinct levels of analysis, utilizing an interdisciplinary approach incorporating concepts from economics, political science, strategy, leadership, psychology, and cognate disciplines. In an active learning seminar environment, students apply concepts from these disciplines to case studies that encompass a spectrum of complex national security challenges. The NSDM curriculum consists of three sub-courses and one culminating exercise: (1) Security Strategies, (2) Policy Analysis, (3) Leadership Concepts, and (4) the NSDM Final Exercise (FX).

Theater Security Decision Making (TSDM): Intermediate Level Course

The Theater Security Decision Making (TSDM) course educates intermediate military officers and U.S. government civilians in the College of Naval Command and Staff and Naval Staff College on effective decision making and leadership on security issues, focusing primarily at the theater strategic level. Focus areas include enhancing cultural awareness and regional expertise; development of theater strategies and understanding associated requirements by the geographic combatant commands; preparation of officers and civilians for intermediate-level command and staff assignments; the nature of economic, political, organizational, and behavioral factors affecting national security decisions within complex national security organizations, with particular emphasis on the combatant commands and their role within the Department of Defense; enhancing critical thinking skills and understanding of the role, formulation, and implementation of theater strategies within the context of broader U.S. national security strategies; and, the characteristics and skills needed to be an effective participant in a senior staff environment.

The course philosophy reflects the belief that effective command and staff leaders must synthesize many academic disciplines and professional experiences. The course therefore approaches national security studies from three distinct levels of analysis, utilizing an interdisciplinary approach incorporating concepts from economics, political science, strategy, leadership, psychology, and cognate disciplines. In an active learning seminar environment, students apply concepts from these disciplines to case studies that encompass a spectrum of complex national security challenges. Each seminar will concentrate on a specific geographic combatant command. Assignments to these regionally-oriented seminars is based on a preference sheet submitted by students and on assessment of past or likely future assignments to a particular region.

Students are requested to submit their regional preference sheet well in advance of the start of the TSDM trimester. The TSDM curriculum consists of three sub-courses and one culminating exercise: (1) Security Strategies, (2) Policy Analysis, (3) Leadership Concepts, and (4) the TSDM Final Exercise (FX). Hone critical and creative thinking skills, especially the ability to develop and evaluate a range of potential solutions to ill-structured problems.
Joint Military Operations (JMO) Department

The Joint Military Operations (JMO) Department teaches the Joint Maritime Operations Course to students in the College of Naval Command and Staff and the Naval Staff College, and teaches the Joint Military Operations Course to students in the College of Naval Warfare and the Naval Command College. The curriculum for each course is based on the enduring principles that historically govern military operations, updated to the current world situation and stemming from the extant National Security and National Military Strategies.

The College of Naval Warfare JMO course emphasizes the issues that must be addressed by a regional, war fighting combatant commander, other supporting combatant commanders, subordinate component commanders, and their staffs. The College of Naval Command and Staff JMO course addresses operations of the joint task force commander, subordinate commanders, and supporting staffs. Both courses seek to instill an entirely new student perspective.

The entering student’s primary background experience generally is centered in a single, discrete discipline within the narrow dimension of a segment of a single-Service environment. The graduating student, on the other hand, has a firm grasp of military and naval strategy and campaigning, including integrated operations with other Services and U.S. agencies, and multinational operations with allies. Graduates also understand the linkages among strategy, operations, and tactics, and possess a thorough grounding in the essential elements of military planning and decision making.

The JMO courses employ a multidisciplinary approach, which synthesizes selected concepts from strategy, military decision making to include international law and rules of engagement, operational planning, and warfare tasks.

Joint Military Operations (JMO): Senior Level Course

The Joint Military Operations (JMO) Senior Level Course (SLC) is an in-depth study of the theater-strategic and operational levels of war across the spectrum of conflict. It builds on Joint Professional Military Education (JPME) Phase I as defined in the Officer Professional Military Education Policy (OPMEP), and complements the Naval War College’s National Security Affairs (NSA) and Strategy and Policy (S&P) curriculum. The JMO SLC prepares students for the operational arena by emphasizing problem solving, operational planning and joint force application to achieve military objectives.

It examines joint operations from the standpoint of the combatant commander (CCDR) and Joint Task Force (JTF) commander with a maritime emphasis. It further develops joint attitudes and perspectives, exposes officers to, and increases their understanding of, service cultures while concentrating on joint staff operations.

The JMO trimester is designed to:
1) Enhance students’ ability to develop operational concepts, to adeptly apply joint planning processes, and to leverage creatively the instruments of national power across the spectrum of conflict in achieving assigned objectives.

2) Strengthen senior leadership skills necessary to excel in major staff responsibilities and in theater-strategic positions of leadership, and to serve as trusted advisors to policy makers.

3) Develop skilled senior war fighters, able to synthesize valid courses of action and to function in volatile, uncertain, complex, and ambiguous operating environments.

4) Hone critical and creative thinking skills, especially the ability to develop and evaluate a range of potential solutions to ill-structured problems.

Joint Maritime Operations (JMO): Intermediate Level Course

The Joint Maritime Operations Intermediate Level Course (ILC), Navy Professional Military Education (PME) with Joint Professional Military Education (JPME) Phase I curriculum, is designed to prepare mid-career U.S. and international military officers and civilians to:

1) Expand critical and creative thinking and develop problem solving skills as they pertain to operational level decision making and leadership.

2) Develop students who are grounded in operational art and its application across the spectrum of conflict.

3) Effectively apply the Joint/Navy Planning Process to meet national security challenges, and introduce the skills required to function as a member of a joint, interagency or multinational planning group.

4) Understand the maritime dimensions of operational warfare.

Once grounded in operational art, JMO students learn to balance the ways, means, ends, and risks to achieve national, theater-strategic, and operational objectives, as well as develop operational designs using service and joint doctrine.

JPME Phase I outcomes include students who are critically thinking planners and leaders with a maritime, operational level perspective. Upon completion of the JMO Phase I course, students will be:

1) Skilled in applying operational art to maritime, joint, interagency and multinational war fighting environments.

2) Skilled in the Joint/Navy Planning Process.
3) Capable of critical thought with an operational perspective.

4) Prepared for operational level leadership challenges.

5) Effective as maritime spokespersons.

Maritime Advanced Warfighting School (MAWS)

The Maritime Advanced Warfighting School (MAWS) is a CNO-directed course that imparts significant naval and joint operational planning knowledge to specially selected Navy and other-Service officers for subsequent assignments to Numbered Fleet, Navy Component Fleet Commander, Joint Component, and Combatant Commander staffs. It integrates the Naval War College (NWC) resident Intermediate Level College (ILC)/ JPME Phase I curriculum with a tailored operational planning and leadership curriculum in a single 13-month package. MAWS educates officers to be operational-level leaders: to understand and apply maritime power effectively; to stand up and lead Operational Planning Teams (OPTs); and to think creatively and critically by evaluating complex, chaotic security problems, identifying key causes and effects, developing exhaustive alternatives, and effectively implementing the best courses of action. MAWS educates officers to conduct operational planning in multinational, interagency, joint, and maritime planning environments.

MAWS students represent all U.S. Services and are chosen from the slate of officers who comprise each August's College-wide intermediate level class (ILC). Navy officers selected to attend the August ILC may apply for MAWS by notifying their detailers of desire to participate. Non-Navy officers selected to attend the August ILC may apply for MAWS by notifying their Senior Service Officers at the NWC. The MAWS integrates the College of Naval Command and Staff core courses (National Security Affairs, Strategy and War, and Joint Maritime Operations), three electives comprising the Joint Planner area of study, and accomplishment of real-world planning missions assigned by Joint and Navy operational commanders in the final three months of the course. This educational process produces skilled practitioners of the operational art and operational planning in the joint and maritime domains.

Electives Program

The Naval War College Electives Program constitutes 20% of the Naval War College resident academic curriculum. The purpose of the Electives Program is to expand treatment of subjects offered in the core curriculum, offer subjects not available in the core curriculum, and provide specialized Areas of Study (AoS) for those students desiring to focus on a certain subject. Students may take courses from various Areas of Study throughout the year, or they may choose to remain with a specific AoS. Some AoS offer an Additional Qualification Designation to U.S. Navy students that can be identified and tracked by the Navy’s personnel system. The NWC offers over one hundred different Elective courses annually, and most are conducted in a small-seminar environment. The lineup of courses evolves from year-to-year, and faculty are encouraged to offer electives in their various specialties. Most Electives are taught by resident faculty, but a significant number is taught by Adjunct Professors from various regional institutions. Each elective counts for two credits and meets for ten three-hour sessions.

AREAS OF STUDY (AOS)

Series of three courses in a particular area of study:

Regional and Cultural Proficiency – Achieves CICS RE Level 3

• Asia-Pacific
• Greater Middle East
• Africa
• Latin America/Western Hemisphere
• Europe Russia

-Executive Analysis for the Warfare Commander
-Corporate Strategic Planning

-Information Operations
-Irregular Warfare
-Leadership & Ethics
-Homeland Security Homeland Defense
-Enterprise Strategic Planning
-Strategic Theater Planner
-Joint Operational Planning (MAWS)
-Halsey Group
Special Research Programs

The Naval War College offers several special programs that provide resident students opportunities to conduct advanced research at the college. These programs provide enhanced educational experiences for select students; encourage innovative and critical thinking; contribute to the professional military and national security literature; support high-level military decision making; and have practical value in the area of building trust and confidence and leadership. The Special Research Programs fall into two general categories: Advanced Research Groups and Individual Research Projects.

Advanced Research Program (ARP) Groups

Four Advanced Research Groups within the Center for Naval Warfare Studies with oversight from the Dean of Academic Affairs provide an opportunity for a small group of specially selected students to pursue collaborative research projects on operational and strategic issues of current interest to the senior leadership of the Navy and the Department of Defense. The ARPs and their primary focus are as follows:

Halsey Alfa: Examines enduring warfare imbalances of high-intensity conventional warfare in maritime area denial situations, specifically in the Pacific Theater. This group uses iterative, ongoing wargaming and operational analysis as their primary methodologies.

Halsey Bravo: Examines medium-intensity, asymmetric and anti-access challenges, particularly within the Middle East. This group also uses iterative, ongoing wargaming and operational analysis as their primary methodologies.

Gravely Group: Students in this group pursue individual research projects into Integrated Air and Missile Defense and Undersea Warfare, based on current and future operational requirements and add to the overall body of knowledge in these mission areas.

Mahan Scholars Program: Students participate in individual and collaborative research projects on an issue of strategic relevance to the U.S. Navy, particularly in the field of nuclear deterrence and counterproliferation.

Individual Advanced Research Projects
The Individual ARPs allow qualified students to undertake individual research projects that substitute for single core courses. These projects, comparable to a master’s research project, are subject to review and approval by the Advanced Research Council (ARC) and the President of the College. They are supervised by faculty advisors with expertise in the areas studied. Faculty members, including the faculty advisor chosen to guide the student’s research and the director of the program, evaluate each ARP proposal and final product. Nominally, individual research projects are proposed in the student’s first trimester at the college with preliminary research done in the second trimester. The student’s final trimester is then used to complete the research and produce the written product. The most successful students in this program have some level of experience in research methodology and in writing thesis-length papers.

Individual ARP students participate in their respective research group as an elective for two trimesters. During one trimester, ARP students participate full time in their research in place of either the Strategy and Policy or National Security Decision Making core courses. Individual ARP students participate in their normal elective track for all three trimesters but substitute their ARP research for Strategy and Policy or National Security Affairs core courses, nominally in their last trimester at the college. Students receive a numerical grade for their participation in the ARP that becomes part of their transcript at the college, contributes to their class standing, and is credited to their matriculation to the Master’s Degree and JPME requirements.

Regional & Specialized Study Groups

The Naval War College hires faculty members with regional security expertise and analysis in all areas of the globe. Academic, research, and gaming faculty members possessing regional and cultural knowledge participate in the NWC’s regional studies groups, through which the NWC promotes major research and exchange/educational relationships with counterpart institutions around the world. The College’s five regional studies groups have become strategic assets in the Global War on Terrorism and in future military operations; they have also helped to support the CNO's maritime security cooperation initiatives. Students are invited to participate as their schedule permits during their academic year.

Faculty from these regional studies groups teach regionally oriented electives and research issues of crucial importance to the numbered Fleets, combatant commanders and other government agencies.

Arctic Studies Group

The Arctic Studies Group (ASG) is an interdisciplinary team of faculty, staff and students with interest, expertise, or experience in the dynamic and emerging Arctic region. In August 2013, the ASG was created to educate leaders, strengthen maritime partnerships, and generate rigorous, forward-thinking, and timely research to support the needs of the joint and naval community. The ASG provides a platform for students and faculty to engage in collaborative thinking, analysis, problem-solving and multi-disciplinary research on Arctic governance and security issues. Beginning in August 2015, the ASG will launch the Arctic studies program - a new area of study (AOS) that prepares an active and growing community of leaders to be critical thinkers and develop joint and naval strategies, plans, programs and policies in the Arctic region. ASG students will explore the linkage between Arctic culture, history, economics, and security through independent research, gaming, field trips, and frequent engagement with regional and functional experts from government, academia, and industry. The curriculum encourages creative, out-of-the-box thinking that enables students to explore solutions to real-world planning missions and problem sets provided by leaders from the Navy, Coast Guard, U.S. European Command, U.S. Northern Command, Joint Staff, Office of the Secretary of Defense, National Security Council, and the Arctic Council. In cooperation with other regional study groups and departments, the ASG hosts a series of lecturers, roundtables, and workshops throughout the year to link students and faculty with scholars and practitioners from both Arctic and non-Arctic states. ASG faculty frequently publish scholarly articles and books on the region and present their research findings to senior leaders and at major academic conferences. In 2014, the ASG hosted lectures and roundtables with Adm. Robert J. Papp (ret), Commandant of the U.S. Coast Guard, General Philip Breedlove, Supreme Allied Commander, Europe (SACEUR), Lt. Gov. Mead Treadwell of Alaska and many other government and industry leaders. The ASG informed the development of the Navy’s Arctic Roadmap 2014-2035, designed the Climate Change and Arctic Panel at the 21st International Seapower Symposium, and hosted the inaugural Arctic Strategy and Policy Seminar (ASPS- which allowed ASG AOS students and visiting experts to engage in original and long-term thinking focused on the Arctic.

Africa Studies Group

The Africa Studies Group comprises faculty and students with an interest in African affairs. The group strives to increase awareness and enhance teaching on regional issues by supporting faculty professional development, sponsoring guest speakers, disseminating information about local events relating to Africa, and circulating electronic articles of interest to members. The ASG also provides subject matter expertise and research support to the Navy, Combatant and Component Commanders and other DoD agencies. It also actively supports NWC and USAFRICOM regional engagement and security cooperation activities in theater. The primary day to day mission of the ASG is the development and execution of an elective program focusing on African culture and history, military history and contemporary security and politics. The College of Distance Education offers online versions of these courses accessible to officers of all services on a global basis.

Asia Pacific Studies Group

The Asia-Pacific Studies Group (APSG) consists of faculty and students at the NWC with particular interest, expertise, or experience in China, Taiwan, Japan, North Korea, South Korea, Russia, Southeast Asia, Australia, Oceania, regional maritime affairs, and U.S. military strategy in the Asia-Pacific region. The group serves as the focal point for information sharing related to major policy developments within the region and to U.S. policy. The APSG supports discussion round tables for visiting dignitaries and hosts several guest speakers throughout the academic year. The group performs an important outreach function for the College by facilitating faculty and student participation in major conferences and research activities in the Asia-Pacific region and in the U.S.. APSG works with the China Maritime Studies Institute and the John A. van Beuren Chair of Asia-Pacific Studies at the Naval War College to promote greater regional awareness. In addition, the APSG undertakes periodic interactions with other military colleges across the region and with major research organizations devoted to Asia and the Pacific. Finally, APSG performs a coordinating function with the Electives Program on the growing array of course offerings on the region and on U.S. Asia-Pacific strategy, enabling students to fulfill the requirements for the College’s Asia-Pacific Studies Concentration. The Asia-Pacific area of studies offers a broad array of courses from basic surveys on specific countries to more specialized topics of importance to the Navy such as Chinese Maritime Development.

Europe-Russia Studies Group

The Europe-Russia Studies Group (ERSG) comprises faculty and students with an interest in Europe, Russia, and the Caucasus. While addressing issues internal to those geopolitical areas, the ERSG focuses on issues of transatlantic interest in the political, economic, and security spheres. The purpose of the ERSG is to stimulate the exchange of applied learning and knowledge, bringing educational value to the Naval War College, its faculty and its students, and supplying strategic and operational thought to topics of relevance to the Navy and the Joint Force through academic research and engagement. To accomplish this, the ERSG program uses subject matter experts, guest speakers, and colloquia capable of addressing economic, political and security issues related to European and Russian institutions, governments, trends and processes. A primary focus of the group has been on establishing and developing a curriculum of elective courses focusing on the region. Currently, there are a number of regional courses addressing the history, economics and politics of the region, including coverage of NATO and the European Union. Over the past year, the ERSG has sponsored lectures from nationally-renowned experts on Russia, NATO, and the European Union. It has taken a leading role in NATO’s Partnership for Peace Program to improve the Professional Military Education of Azerbaijan. Forthcoming initiatives of the ERSG include the development of a cooperative relationship with the Russian Naval War College (Kuznetsov Academy) in St. Petersburg. The ERSG is the principal vehicle through which the Naval War College’s special partnership with the U.S. European Command is implemented, providing academic and analytical support for the theater combatant commander.

Greater Middle East Group

The Greater Middle East Research Study Group (GME RSG) is comprised of regional experts, civilian and military, whose collective academic research interests, operational experience, and professional careers focus on the most important strategic challenges within this region. The group advances the NWC educational mission through its dedication to three key areas: teaching, research, and international engagement. The GME RSG works closely with the College’s Greater Middle East Area of Study (AOS) in the resident electives program which seeks to ensure that resident mid-grade and senior military officers are offered a robust and cutting-edge elective curriculum through classroom instruction, independent research, and opportunities for engagement with the region. In cooperation with the other regional study groups, the GME RSG facilitates conferences, lectures, and workshops throughout the year that link our faculty and students with other communities of scholars and professionals outside the college in both government agencies and academic institutions such as the Watson Center for International Affairs.
Studies (Brown University), Belfer Center (Harvard University) and the Crown Center for Middle East Studies (Brandeis University). Since 2006, the GME RSG has been instrumental in providing lectures of opportunity, faculty funding, professional development opportunities, and workshops and conferences on strategic challenges within the region. The GME RSG seeks to integrate the professional and intellectual capital of its affiliated faculty and student body with the college’s larger mission through curricular excellence, programmatic relevance, and community and international outreach on the critical region and nations of the Greater Middle East.

Indian Ocean Studies Group

The Indian Ocean Studies Group (IOSG), comprised of faculty, staff, and students with an interest in the region, has a maritime focus that crosses U.S. government organizational and traditional land-centric geographic seams. The goal of the work of the study group is to examine issues and areas that may be relatively understudied and bring a uniquely maritime point of view to the region to provide valuable insights to policy makers and analysts in accordance with the educational mission of the Naval War College. The IOSG serves as the War College's principal forum for addressing a full range of Indian Ocean strategy and policy issues. The study group’s activities include group meetings; sponsorship of a visiting speakers program; dissemination of research in progress and publication of final research results; and workshops and conferences. The group has also been engaged in directly supporting senior DoD decision makers on strategic issues in the region.

Latin America Studies Group

The Latin American Studies Group, comprised of faculty, staff and students with an interest in the region, coordinates the planning, programming, budgeting, and execution of an extensive engagement program throughout the Latin American region. The Group also shares perspectives on key political, economic and security issues in the region with a focus on understanding context and providing perspective on this dynamic and growing region of the world. This engagement program supports theater security cooperation activities of the U.S. Southern Command, U.S. Northern Command, their naval components, and the U.S. Navy. The study group supports a variety of regionally-focused activities: conferences; war games; research projects; faculty travel to conduct lectures, workshops, and curriculum reviews; and war college and faculty visits from the region to the Naval War College. Additionally, the Group supports the Inter-American War Game and the Multilateral War Game involving over 14 countries from the region. Latin America Studies Group faculty also prepare and deliver lectures and short courses at naval war colleges, defense staffs, think tanks, and civilian universities throughout the region. The knowledge and regional understanding gained is brought back and incorporated into the college's core curriculum, electives, and research programs. Faculty members teach the three electives in the Western Hemisphere - Latin American Concentration. The electives provide a general overview of the government, geography and culture of the region, a more focused examination of security challenges in the region, and a study of regional economic trends to include case studies of significant economic events in modern Latin American history.
Reserve Component JPME I Courses The Naval War College currently administers three Reserve Component (RC) JPME I syllabus programs each academic year. The Theater Security and Decision Making course is normally held in the Spring, and the Strategy and War course is normally held in the Fall, while the Joint Maritime Operations Course is held in the Winter. These courses are based upon the NWC College of Distance Education (CDE) JPME I syllabus and once completed may be applied as partial credit toward a Naval War College JPME I certificate by enrolling in the NWC CDE Web-enabled or CDROM-based Programs. The courses do involve substantial pre-course preparation and are administered by the same NWC Faculty members who teach the In-Residence programs. These courses are available to all branches of the armed forces. Funding can be obtained either through your parent service, command or Commander, Navy Reserve Forces Command (CNRFC), N7-Training. Further information on these courses can be obtained by contacting the NWC Operational Support Office (401-841-4068), via email at operationalsupport@usnwc.edu, or on the Operational Support/Reserve Affairs section of NWC's website. CNRFC N7 will release a message advertising a board for schools ADT funding to attend these courses. These messages can be viewed via normal message traffic or by signing-in via CAC to CNRFC N7’s website at http://www.navyreserve.navy.mil

Center on Irregular Warfare and Armed Groups (CIWAG)

CIWAG was created in 2008 and has been supported by a combination of DoD funds and private grants from the Smith-Richardson and Bradley Foundations to ensure that education and research on armed groups remains timely and easily accessible. The center’s mission is threefold: promote and support research and teaching on irregular warfare and armed groups; disseminate cutting-edge analysis via symposia and workshops to provide a forum for dialogue at the Naval War College between U.S. and international practitioners and scholars; and expand outreach and networking activities to establish and sustain a “community of interest” devoted to the study and teaching of irregular warfare and armed groups.

CIWAG has developed a dozen case studies and is working on additional cases by noted scholars from around the world to provide students from professional military educational institutions and civilian universities with operational and strategic insights into contemporary and historical issues pertaining to irregular warfare and armed groups. The Center also has 13 senior associates who are U.S. Naval War College faculty members and four research associates. CIWAG hosts an annual symposium at the college.

COLLEGE OF DISTANCE EDUCATION
The College of Distance Education (CDE) provides Naval War College education programs to Naval officers, other service officers, and selected federal civilian employees who cannot attend the NWC in residence. The College pioneered non-resident military education in 1914 to directly connect it with officers in the fleet. The College delivers group and individual programs that met the standards for programmatic reaccreditation by the Chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff for JPME Phase I during 2009.

The non-resident intermediate-level student population has grown considerably over the last few years to its present number of more than 5,000. The College now offers four tailored programs to meet JPME-I requirements and the unique circumstances of its non-resident students.

This progress reflects the College’s efforts to assist the CNO in educating future leaders, and it also fulfills statutory requirements for JPME Phase I. The success of the resident curriculum carries over to these directly-derived non-resident programs. The CDE faculty is closely involved with its resident academic department colleagues in curricula development, and most importantly, they provide the expertise required to adapt the resident curricula to the various distance education methodologies.

The Director of CDE and the academic department Chairs mutually consent to the intermediate-level curricula of the various distance education programs, which are approved by the Dean of Academic Affairs. The bond between the core resident faculty and the distance education faculty has strengthened significantly as they work to ensure similarity and compatibility in curricular content and administrative procedures. Selected CDE Newport faculty teach every year in the resident core curricula, and nearly the entire full-time Newport CDE faculty has taught in the resident programs in the past. Additionally, the resident faculty participates in the College’s Fleet Seminar Program Additional Instruction Location Assessment and Lecture Program, further ensuring the educational effectiveness and the congruence of the resident and non-resident intermediate-level programs.

Fleet Seminar Program

The Fleet Seminar Program (FSP) delivers a seminar-based curricula taught by adjunct and on-campus faculty members to about 1,200 students annually at Naval bases and stations across the United States. Students attend thirty-four weekly evening seminars annually to complete each course, typically taking three years to complete the program. Applications for admission are open from April through June of each year, with classes formed in August for an early September start.

Seminars are offered at the following locations: Newport, RI; Annapolis, MD; Washington DC; Patuxent River, MD; Norfolk, VA; Dahlgren, VA; Great Lakes, IL; Millington, TN; Mayport, FL; Jacksonville, FL; Pensacola, FL; New Orleans, LA; Dallas/Fort Worth, TX; San Diego, CA; Port Hueneme, CA; Whidbey Island, WA; Everett, WA; Bangor, WA; and Pearl Harbor, HI.
Graduate Degree Program

As a special adjunct to the Fleet Seminar Program, students may apply separately for the Graduate Degree Program (GDP) after successful completion on their first FSP core course. The GDP leads to the award of the NWC Master of Arts degree, and requires the completion of the three FSP core courses with a minimum B- grade, and the completion of nine semester hours of elective course work in an approved Area of Study.

Web-enabled Program

The Web-enabled Program delivers a tailored curriculum taught by CDE faculty to cohorts of about twenty students on the World-Wide Web. The Web-enabled Program is an 18-month, paced program with scheduled interaction between the students and the instructor, and between the students themselves singly or in groups. The three individual courses require about 6-8 hours of work each week, and the requirement to keep pace with the instructor and classmates results in a very high course completion rate. The time required actually "online" is minimal, and all online work is asynchronous, that is, not at the same time in a "chat room" mode. Additionally, there is never a set time that students must be online, so students and professors may be physically located around the world.

Web Class Cohorts:

- Strategy & War (S&W) is 17 weeks long and starts quarterly in January, April, July, and October.
- Theater Security and Decision Making (TSDM) is 20 weeks long and starts quarterly in February, May, August, and November.
- Joint Maritime Operations (JMO) is 34 weeks long and starts quarterly in February, May, August, and November.

CD-ROM Based Program

The CDROM-based Program is available on a controlled basis to a limited number of students, typically those active duty officers stationed at sea or in remote locations with limited or no internet access. The methodology of this program allows eligible students to complete an independent-study, distance program supervised by CDE faculty. Faculty and student interaction is primarily by email supplemented by paper or phone correspondence when necessary. Individual study precedes evaluated assignments. The curriculum and assessments are designed to be completed in 12-14 months at a pace of 4-6 hours of study per week.
Internet access is not required. The intent of the CDROM-based Program is to leverage technology by using a number of audio and video enhancements to supplement the required readings in each course. Video lectures by resident faculty are recorded and embedded on the media. There are also a number of interactive student activities, self-assessment quizzes, and graphics to provide a more engaging learning environment. In addition to regular curriculum updates on each of the courses, most of the media have been updated to DVD, and several software improvements have been implemented to improve the user interface.

Naval War College at the Naval Postgraduate School

The Vice Chief of Naval Operations (VCNO) tasked NWC to assume responsibility for the JPME I program at the Naval Postgraduate School (NPS) in Monterey in 1999. Starting in the Academic Year 1999-2000, the NWC entered a partnership with NPS and offered the NWC core courses to eligible personnel at NPS as electives in their programs of studies. In addition, the S&W course fulfills a Secretary of the Navy requirement for all Department of the Navy personnel attending NPS in residence to complete a maritime strategy course.

The core NWC courses are taught in a seminar format in the classroom on the NPS quarterly schedule. Both S&W and NSA are taught in one quarter each, while JMO is split into two courses, each comprising one quarter in length. The courses need not be taken in sequence over four consecutive quarters, but may be spread-out over the time a student is assigned to NPS. The only caveat to this feature is that JMO I must be completed before JMO II. Other service officers at NPS are also eligible to attend the courses for their JPME I certification thus adding important joint acculturation to the program. On average, about 400 students a quarter enroll in the NWC-at-NPS courses, and about the same number graduate each year, thus earning the CDE Command and Staff Intermediate-Level Service College diploma and JPME Phase I certification.

INTERNATIONAL PROGRAMS

The Naval War College maintains two international academic student bodies, the Naval Command College (NCC) and the Naval Staff College (NSC). The NCC is for select senior international naval officers and a small number of U.S. officers. The NSC is for select intermediate international naval officers and a small number of U.S. officers.

Both colleges gain the same level of understanding U.S. naval officers would acquire and still receive instruction at the unclassified level from NWC’s three core teaching departments, Strategy and Policy; National Security Affairs, and Joint Military Operations. In addition to military proficiency, both colleges have the goal of fostering trust, cooperation and friendship among allied and friendly navies.
Naval Command College

Senior-level international students in the Naval Command College (NCC) are fully integrated in CNW, attending seminars and lectures with their U.S. counterparts. They complete classes, seminar exercises, and writing assignments in JMO, NSDM and S&P; international officers complete a team project in NSDM. International officers may voluntarily take all exams. The faculty evaluates their academic work and provides substantive, written feedback, but does not assign grades to these products. Additionally, the Field Studies Program is designed to give a balanced understanding of the United States culture and institutions as well as American political, social, and economic life and to give an increased awareness of the basic issues of internationally recognized human rights.

International officers are encouraged to participate in the Electives Program. They receive graduate level credit for courses completed at the Naval War College which can be applied to a masters degree program at local universities.

Naval Staff College

The Naval Staff College (NSC) is a program for intermediate level international officers, who attend the College of Naval Command and Staff core courses alongside their U.S. counterparts. Students submit papers and participate in most academic exercises but students are not required to take exams and don not receive grades. The education for these international officers is a blend of the Naval War College curriculum and Field Studies Program (FSP). This program exposes the students to the American culture, economy, government, and American leaders through a series of scheduled trips throughout the country. Additionally, the NSC has created Maritime Staff Coalition sessions designed to enhance the educational experience of the international officers attending the Naval War College. Its objective is to increase student understanding of global maritime coalition operations.

Graduates receive a Naval War College diploma and transfer credit.

STUDENT BODY

The Naval War College educates about 600 students each year, separated into five colleges. Each college is distinct, and may contain senior or junior-level officers; U.S. or international officers; and even students from civilian federal government institutions, such as the Central Intelligence Agency or the Federal Bureau of Investigation. NWC also admits students from other U.S. armed services.
College of Naval Warfare
The College of Naval Warfare (CNW) is a multidisciplinary program for senior level officers in the U.S. Navy, Coast Guard, Marine Corps, Army and Air Force, typically in the pay grade of O-5 or O-6. The college also welcomes members of civilian Federal organizations of respective seniority. This senior level professional military education program provides students with executive-level preparation for higher responsibilities as senior captains/colonels and flag/general officers.

College of Naval Command and Staff
The College of Naval Command and Staff (CNCS) is a multidisciplinary program for intermediate level officers in the U.S. Navy, Coast Guard, Marine Corps, Army and Air Force, typically in the pay grade of O-4. The college also welcomes members of civilian federal organizations of respective seniority. This intermediate level service college course provides an initial opportunity for professional military education wherein students prepare for increased responsibilities as commanders/lieutenant colonels and as junior captains/colonels.

Naval Command College
The Naval Command College (NCC) enrolls senior international officers, who attend the College of Naval Warfare core courses alongside their U.S. counterparts. Students submit papers and participate in most academic exercises, voluntarily take exams, but do not receive grades. The education for these international officers is a blend of the Naval War College curriculum and Field Studies Program (FSP). This program exposes the students to the American culture, economy, government, and American leaders through a series of scheduled trips throughout the country.

Graduates receive a Naval War College diploma and transfer credit.

Naval Staff College
The Naval Staff College (NSC) is a program for intermediate level international officers. The NSC course is comprised of a ten-month college program of Strategy and War, Theater Security Decision Making, and Joint Maritime Operations and a six-month course that parallels the ten-month curriculum, in addition to the International Law and Ocean Affairs class. Students submit papers and participate in most academic exercises but students are not required to take exams and do not receive grades. Students go on several FSP trips throughout their academic year.

College of Distance Education
The College of Distance Education (CDE) provides Naval War College education programs to Naval officers, other U.S. military service officers, and selected federal civilian employees who cannot attend in residence. The Fleet Seminar Program (FSP) delivers a seminar-based curriculum taught by adjunct and on-campus faculty members to about 1,200 students annually across the United States. Students attend weekly evening seminars for about thirty-four weeks to complete each of the three core courses. FSP students may earn the NWC master’s degree by gaining admission to the Graduate Degree Program and completing additional elective course credits. The Web-enabled Program delivers a tailored curriculum taught by CDE faculty to cohorts of about twenty students via the Internet. The CDROM-based Program offers a self-paced program specifically designed for officers assigned to sea duty or in remote locations where access to the Internet is non-existent or severely limited. The NWC at NPS Program is an in-class seminar program taught to officer students at the NPS that offers the opportunity to earn the JPME Phase I certification and Naval War College Diploma while completing the NPS master's degree.

COLLEGE OF OPERATIONAL AND STRATEGIC LEADERSHIP
The College of Operational and Strategic Leadership (COSL) was formally established in October 2007, and provides Professional Military Education by focusing on leader development.

COSL is comprised of two departments:

The Operational Level Programs (OLP) Department is responsible for Joint Flag Education (JFMCC/CFMCC) courses, Maritime Staff Operators Course (MSOC) to include Battle Lab, the Executive Level Operational Level of War Course (ELOC), and the Assist and Assess Team (AAT).

The Leadership and Ethics Department is responsible for the NWC Leadership and Ethics Electives Area of Study, Professional Military Ethics Program, and Stockdale Group Advanced Research Program. It integrates leadership with ethics and character development in the Navy's PME continuum for Navy officer and enlisted personnel. The Leadership and Ethics Department is also responsible for supporting the Navy’s Leader Development Continuum from E-1 through Flag rank.

Operational Level Programs (OLP)

The Operational Level Programs Department of the College of Operational and Strategic Leadership provides education, training, and assistance on maritime operations for current and future fleet commanders and their staffs in order to more effectively and efficiently employ naval, joint, and combined forces at the operational level of war.

Responsibilities of the Operational Level Programs Department include:

a. Establishing and maintaining Officer (to include Flag Officers) and Enlisted development programs to serve effectively as Maritime Component Commanders or as staff members at Fleet Headquarters.

b. Maintaining oversight and management of Operational Level Programs (OLP) which facilitate the development and refinement of the Combined/Joint Force Maritime Component Commander's (C/JFMCC) Flag Officer Course, Maritime Staff Operators Course (MSOC), the Executive Level Operational Level of War Course (ELOC), the Assist and Assess Team (AAT), and other activities within the Naval War College that involve maritime operational level command and control (C2) as it directly relates to the Fleet, as well as direct support to the fleet in maritime operational level C2 training and assistance. These programs:

1) Address the practical challenges confronting commanders and staffs at the operational level of war in the maritime domain.

2) Serve as both a foundation and a catalyst for the Navy’s continued evolution of JFMCC, Navy Component Commander (NCC), and numbered fleet concepts, capabilities, and doctrine.

3) Develop perspectives necessary for Commanders and their staffs to gain a high degree of confidence with concepts, systems, language and processes to effectively employ naval forces in a joint, interagency and multinational environment.

4) Provide unique insights to various Navy-wide working groups chartered with improving the overall Maritime Operations Centers (MOC) structure in the United States Navy.
These groups focus on both processes and equipment used throughout the Navy at the operational level of war and to improve the overall performance of Navy MOCs.

5) Assign and task personnel, organize and resource programs, and maintain facilities to serve as a resource of maritime operational level C2 expertise for the Navy.

6) Facilitate Highly Qualified Expert/Maritime Senior Mentor (HQE) support to the Navy’s Fleet and Strike Group Commanders.

Combined Force Maritime Component Commander Course
The Combined Force Maritime Component Commander (CFMCC) course is a one-week, flag-level class that addresses the operational-level maritime security challenges faced by the nations of a specific region. It is comprised of flag-level officers from all U.S. services, as well as from invited nations that operate in the region. Two or three courses are held each year, hosted by regional US Navy commanders (i.e., US Pacific Fleet, U.S. Naval Forces Europe/U.S. Naval Forces Africa, U.S. Naval Forces Central Command, and U.S. Naval Forces Southern Command). It is taught at the unclassified level.

The course develops a network of leaders, focused on the operational level, in support of cooperation in the theater, and oriented toward maritime security. It also helps to evolve the Combined Maritime Command and Control concepts, while advancing the understanding of security issues facing participating nations.

The CFMCC Flag Course provides executive-level attendees with the background and perspective to effectively and efficiently integrate unique maritime capabilities, in support of the objectives of the combined force, while recognizing the possibility of competing national objectives of participating nations.

Joint Force Maritime Component Commander Course
The Joint Force Maritime Component Commander (JFMCC) course is a one-week, flag-level course conducted at the Naval War College. It is designed to prepare future maritime component commanders to plan and execute complex maritime operations. Taught at the classified level, only United States flag/general officers are permitted to attend. Students come from each of the military services as selected by their service headquarters with the majority of them being naval officers.

The JFMCC Flag Course addresses the practical challenges confronting the maritime operational commander. Actual regional concerns, and the JFMCC’s capabilities to address those concerns, are the basis for course discussions and study. Further, the course considers existing JFMCC concepts and doctrine, operational-level capabilities, command and control processes and applications, and the considerations and expectations of joint force commanders as well as supporting functional component commanders.
The course brings in experienced subject matter experts as session instructors to develop perspectives necessary to effectively employ naval forces in a joint, coalition, or interagency environment.

Maritime Staff Operators Course

The primary objective of the Maritime Staff Operators Course (MSOC) is to comprehend, analyze, and apply Maritime Operations Center (MOC) processes and procedures necessary to plan, prepare, execute, and assess complex maritime operations in a dynamic environment. Its mission is to educate and prepare students to immediately and effectively serve on maritime operational-level staffs. This course began in 2007 and now educates about 400 students each year.

This course examines both the art and science associated with military activities across the range of military operations. It includes recently developed MOC concepts and substantial application of the Navy Planning Process (NPP). MSOC incorporates seminars, lectures, and practical exercises using a realistic maritime scenario. It culminates with a synthesizing Battle Lab exercise designed to replicate the organization, processes, procedures, and command and control tools of a nominal MOC.

The focus of this course is on maritime operations at the operational level of war. The construct is inherently joint, and uses both Navy and joint doctrine as standard references. Accordingly, it emphasizes the applications of maritime capabilities through a Combined/Joint Force Commander (JFC). Students apply planning skills and maritime staff processes and procedures across numerous maritime lines of operation (LOOs), which include, but are not limited to, freedom of navigation (FON), maritime interception operations (MIO), noncombatant evacuation operations (NEOs), humanitarian assistance/disaster relief (HA/DR) operations, and multi-service/interagency/multinational operations.

A practitioner’s approach is applied requiring hands-on student participation. Student-produced deliverables include military briefings and mission-type orders (e.g., operation orders (OPORDs) and fragmentary orders (FRAGORDs) and daily intentions and directives messages (DIDMs).

The course builds on fundamentals and culminates with the planning of multiple LOOs during the execution phase of MSOC. This course is designed to produce personnel who are capable of performing in a high-tempo, fluid operational environment.

Executive Level Operational Level of War Course

The Executive Level Operational Level of War Course (ELOC) is focused at the senior leadership (O-6) level, and ensures attendees are properly educated in and understand the intricacies of effectively participating the decision making process and managing a Maritime Operations Center (MOC) and its resources.

The course provides the Fleet staff principal with insights to be an effective and efficient manager of the people, processes and resources of the staff to support the commander in TIMELY, INFORMED, and PROACTIVE decision-making and execution of command responsibilities. Course objectives are to allow attendees to: understand the Maritime Operational Level of War (OLW) and the central role the Fleet staff plays in orchestrating tactical actions in consonance with strategic guidance; understand how staff principals participate in and apply the operations and supporting processes; discuss the roles, relationships, and evolution of maritime Command and Control relative to the staff, MOC, and subordinate commands; discuss, and provide Fleet insights into staff resource challenges and level of decision authority in managing the staff and Maritime Operations Center (MOC); and appreciate the staff principals’ pivotal position in facilitating internal staff communication and in translating the Commander’s operational desires into action, both within and external to the staff.

Assist and Assess Team
The Assist and Assess Team (AAT) is comprised of naval officers, chief petty officers, and civilian faculty who partner with the eight Fleet Commanders, their Maritime Operations Center (MOC) staffs and coordinate with other Navy, joint, interagency and multinational commands/organizations to enhance the Navy’s maritime command, control and readiness at the operational level of war. This is accomplished through tailored operational-level assistance and education to fleet staffs at the MOC sites, by helping to harvest and share best practices, identify trouble areas and tackle challenges in an effort to find solutions, including fusing of doctrine and practices. Additionally, the AAT provides on-site support to fleet commanders and their staffs during major exercises. This support is provided in conjunction with Fleet Forces Command personnel as members of the United States Navy MOC Training Team.

The OLP faculty and staff also coordinate closely with other departments across the college to help infuse current maritime operational level of war issues, insights, and observed fleet practices into other curriculum, conferences and wargaming activities to ensure accurate and relevant representation in those entities.

Leadership and Ethics Department

The Leadership and Ethics Department is responsible for the Leadership and Ethics Areas of Study in the Naval War College’s Electives Program, Professional Military Ethics Program, and the Stockdale Group Advanced Research Program. This department works closely with the Navy Leadership and Ethics Center (NLEC) as well as with Navy leadership on issues involving character development and stewardship of the profession of arms, to include supporting the execution of the Navy Leader Development Strategy in supporting the development of an effective Navy Leader Development Continuum from E-1 to O-10.

It also is responsible for NWC’s Professional Military Ethics Program that provides a series of lectures, panels, seminars and discussion groups to further officers' understanding and application of ethical leadership which is led by the Admiral James B. Stockdale Chair of Military Ethics.
CENTER FOR NAVAL WARFARE STUDIES

The Center for Naval Warfare Studies perpetuates Admiral Luce’s vision of the College as a place of original research on all matters pertaining to war, statesmanship connected with war and the prevention of war. Focused on the maritime aspect of national security and defense, the center possesses a range of scholarly and analytic capabilities. It fosters critical and innovative thinking on current and evolving operational challenges of importance for the Navy.

The center directly complements the curriculum at the Naval War College by providing a place for researching important professional issues which, in turn, inform and stimulate the faculty and students in the classroom. Moreover, from its very beginning, the center has linked the Naval War College to the fleet and policymakers in Washington by serving as a focal point, stimulus, and major source of strategic and campaign thought.

War Gaming Department

The War Gaming Department conducts high quality research, analysis, gaming, and education to support the Naval War College mission, prepare future maritime leaders, and help shape key decisions on the future of the Navy. As the world's premier gaming organization, the War Gaming Department conducts approximately 50 games annually in support of internal College needs and externally generated requests from various branches of the Defense and Navy Departments, operational commands, and civilian agencies. To support the objectives of each game's sponsor, the War Gaming Department employs a wide variety of gaming techniques ranging from complex, multi-sided, computer-assisted games to simpler, single-sided seminar games. Games can range from broad national strategies to operational plans to the specifics of tactics. Most games take place at the College, but some are conducted off site.

War gaming is a valuable research tool for investigating strategic and operational concepts and exercising military and civilian decision makers in maritime and joint warfare. War gaming is an effective technique for creating a decision-making environment that fosters education and understanding for the participants whether they are students or operational staffs. War gaming also provides insights into complex problems, is beneficial in assessing risk in operational plans, and helps identify issues associated with potential future force structure.

Warfare Analysis and Research Department
The Warfare Analysis and Research (WAR) Department conducts relevant research into current and future warfighting issues using select Naval War College students working under the mentorship of experienced research professionals.

Collaborative research efforts are coordinated through student participation in the Halsey or Gravely research groups while individual research work is guided by faculty from not only within the WAR department but also by faculty throughout the college.

WAR Department research and analysis is used to inform key decision-makers, commanders, and other national security agencies.

Under the management of the Warfare Analysis and Research Department, the Decision Support Center (DSC) provides an innovative environment specifically designed to bring together a range of tools to aid in decision-making, concept development or alternative analysis. The DSC is available for use by Department of Defense, the Department of the Navy, and other government agencies.

Strategic Research Department

The Strategic Research Department (SRD) makes two essential contributions to the teaching and research missions of the Naval War College.

First, SRD is a center for regional security expertise and analysis in four broad areas of the globe: Eurasia, the Asia-Pacific region, the Greater Middle East and Latin America. SRD faculty members have in-country experience, historical knowledge, and critical languages (including Arabic, Farsi, Turkish, Russian, German, French, Chinese, Japanese and Spanish). They teach regionally-oriented electives and research issues of importance to the numbered Fleets, combatant commanders and other government agencies.

Second, SRD provides functional areas of expertise with direct relevance to naval strategy, policy and operations. SRD faculty members have substantive expertise in national security decision-making, naval strategy and doctrine, nonproliferation/counter-proliferation, nuclear strategy, civil-military relations and military transformation among others.

MARITIME HISTORY DEPARTMENT
On behalf of the Naval War College president, the Maritime History Department manages and directs the Naval War College’s maritime history research and sea service heritage programs throughout the College. Programs include:

- Historical research in world and U.S. maritime history;
- NWC command and local naval history.
- Naval War College Museum
- NWC art, print, drawing, artifact collections
- NWC archives, manuscript, rare book/imprint collections
- Occasional maritime history publications, including the Naval War College Historical Monograph series
- Occasional maritime history conferences
- Commemorative events
- History fellowships and prizes
- Oral history

The Maritime History Department serves as the central resource and contact point for the entire Naval War College in matters relating to maritime history. The Department provides the interface between the Naval War College, the Naval Historical Center, and the Naval War College Museum. The Department includes the Ernest J. King Professor of Maritime History, who serves as the College’s senior academic expert in the field of maritime history. Under the chairman, the Maritime History Department directs (a) research and writing in naval history and (b) the Naval War College Museum, and coordinates the relationships of these activities with (c) the Naval War College Library’s collections of manuscripts, archives, and rare books.

The Maritime Historian serves as the central resource and contact point for the entire Naval War College in matters relating to maritime history. The department carries on the tradition at the Naval War College that was begun in the works of Rear Admirals Stephen B. Luce and Alfred Thayer Mahan in the period between 1884 and 1910. Their fundamental and original contributions to historical research and naval scholarship laid the foundation for today’s modern approaches to the history of naval strategy and naval operations.

The Historian specializes in the history of the theory and practice of naval and maritime strategy, the history of naval operations in all periods, the history of naval activities in the Narragansett Bay region since the age of exploration, and the history of the Naval War College since 1884.

NAVAL WAR COLLEGE PRESS

The Naval War College Press publishes the quarterly Naval War College Review, which focuses on politico-military, strategic, and operational matters. The NWC Press also publishes both the
STOCKTON CENTER FOR THE STUDY OF INTERNATIONAL LAW

The Stockton Center for the Study of International Law (formerly, the International Law Department) serves as the Naval War College's focal point for the study of international and maritime law and oceans policy as they affect US military policy, strategy, and operations. Through scholarly research, publication, teaching, and international engagement, the Stockton Center substantially advances the understanding of complex legal and policy issues confronting the United States and other nations today and in the future.

The Stockton Center hosts a number of workshops on emerging legal issues throughout the year that draw the world's leading international law experts. It provides legal support to war games and teaches three Naval War College electives in the International and Operational Law area of study (AOS 9 – AQD 229). When requested, the Stockton Center provides advice to the Fleet and other DOD entities on a variety of international, operational, and maritime legal issues. As part of its research, the Stockton Center compiles, edits, and publishes the annual “Blue Book” International Law Studies series that since 1901 has provided a forum for prominent legal scholars to publish articles that contribute to the broader understanding of international law. Beginning with the publication of Volume 89 in 2013 the International Law Studies entered a new era as on-line publication, which was undertaken to make the proud history and current scholarly works more accessible to a broader audience. The Stockton Center serves as Primary Review Authority for The Commander’s Handbook on the Law of Naval Operations (NWP 1-14M/MCWP 5-2.1/COMDTPUB P5800.7). It also produces the Maritime Operational Zones Manual. Members of the Stockton Center serve as faculty for International Institute of Humanitarian Law, Asia-Pacific Centre for Military Law, and NATO School courses on the law of armed conflict, the law of naval operations, and rules of engagement, and as guest lecturers at various U.S. and international law conferences.

OFFICE OF NAVAL INTELLIGENCE DETACHMENT, NEWPORT

The Office of Naval Intelligence Detachment (ONI Det) is part of Office of Naval Intelligence (ONI), headquartered in Suitland, Maryland. The detachment was established in 1977 at the Naval War College (NWC) due to the requirement for significant intelligence support to wargaming. With the standup of the Center for Naval Warfare Studies in 1981 and a recently invigorated NWC focus on support to the operational Navy, the detachment's mission broadened to include support to a variety of research and analysis programs. Today, ONI Det provides intelligence support to research, analysis and wargaming at NWC, and facilitates ONI access to research and analytic expertise resident at the college. Detachment members are integrated onto NWC wargaming teams for game design, development, testing and execution, providing intelligence-related subject matter expertise. The detachment is also fully integrated into various regional and functional analytic efforts at NWC, supporting the Halsey, Gravely and Mahan student research groups, the Maritime Advanced Warfighting School, the Chief of Naval Operations Strategic Studies Group, and others. In addition, the detachment is the point of presence for dedicated network support in the region.

HENRY E. ECCLES LIBRARY

The NWC Library dates back to August 1885 when books were requisition for the first officers assigned to the College. Nineteen years later, in 1904, a building was erected to house the library, which was then named Alfred Thayer Mahan Library. In 1905 the first librarian was appointed.

Since 1976, the Library has been housed in Hewitt Hall, named in honor of the late Rear Admiral Henry Effingham Eccles, a noted logistician, strategist, and author whose association with the Naval War College spanned 38 years. In August 2014, the Library moved to temporary quarters in Sims Hall while Hewitt Hall undergoes major renovation. A new, state-of-the-art Learning Commons is scheduled to be completed in 2016 and the Library will return to Hewitt Hall during the summer of 2016.

The NWC Library provides information resources and services that promote lifelong learning and support the research and education mission of the Naval War College. The Library not only serves the resident Naval War College community, it supports distance education students, visiting scholars and dignitaries, and the broader academic and military communities.

The Library is composed of three primary divisions:

- The Henry E. Eccles Library is the main library. It houses the reference, microform, periodicals, and general circulating collections, along with the Federal (Superintendent of Documents) Depository collection. The Library collections include over 300,000 books and documents, over 1,700 periodical titles (350 of which are current print subscriptions), over 500,000 microforms; and access to approximately 125 online database systems, which contain tens of thousands of full text journals and e-books.

- The Classified Library, also temporarily housed in Sims Hall, offers students and faculty access to SIPRNet terminals and a wide range of classified and restricted print and electronic resources. Featured holdings include Strategy and Policy lectures and lecture outlines, NWC student research papers, Naval Warfare Publications, Army Field Manuals, NATOPS Manuals, JCS publications, RAND studies, and CNA studies. Access requires a secret security clearance.

- The Naval Historical Collection (NHC), located in Mahan Hall, is where the College archivists arrange and describe records and manuscripts of enduring value, including correspondence, reports, class lecture notes, oral histories, manuscripts and other primary source materials documenting the history and activities of the College and the Navy in Narragansett Bay. Collections of note include volumes from the personal libraries of Naval War College luminaries Stephen B. Luce and Alfred Thayer Mahan; the Dr. Alexander Hamilton Rice Collection on geography and exploration, which includes a first edition of Richard Hakluyt’s The Principal Navigations, Voyages, Traffiques and Discoveries of the English Nation (1589); and the sole complete run of the Newport Navalog—Naval Station Newport’s weekly newspaper dating back to the early twentieth century. Many of these documents have been digitized and can be viewed on the NHC’s website at https://archives.usnwc.edu/. The Rare Books Collection, now a part of the NHC, is composed of 4,000 volumes dating back to the sixteenth century covering maritime affairs, history, politics, art and literature.

The Henry E. Eccles Library and Classified Library are open 0800-1630, Mondays through Fridays, throughout the year. The Naval Historical Collection is open Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday 0800-1600, or by appointment (401-841-2345). Researchers are welcome. Public access to the Library and Naval Historical Collection is available through Gate 1 of the U.S. Naval Station, Newport. For base access please email libref@usnwc.edu or call 401.841.3052 for instructions and directions. Notification is required at least 10 days in advance of the date(s) you plan to visit. For the latest information about the Library, follow us on Facebook at www.facebook.com/USNWCLibrary.

SENIOR ENLISTED ACADEMY

The Navy Senior Enlisted Academy (SEA) provides an opportunity for Senior Chief Petty Officers (E8s) to engage in studies that broaden their educational experience, and assist them in fulfilling today’s increasing senior enlisted responsibilities. The curriculum is designed to be as demanding, challenging, diversified, and comprehensive as possible. The Senior Enlisted Academy develops stronger leaders by preparing them to fulfill their expanded and ever-widening roles as global leaders in a “GLOBAL FORCE FOR GOOD.”

The SEA is the Navy's only Professional Military Education (PME) institute for our senior enlisted force. Of the 1,200 students in attendance annually, the majority are active duty Navy personnel. Navy Reserve, Air Force, Army, Coast Guard, Marine Corps, and International service members make up the remainder of the student population.
The SEA has been successful in preparing senior enlisted leaders for positions of greater responsibilities since 1981. As a result of that success, graduation from the SEA has long been a requirement before assuming the position of Command Master Chief or Chief of the Boat. Additionally, for E8s selected in FY17 and beyond, graduation from the SEA will be a prerequisite for promotion to E9.

For Active Duty military, the 12-week Active Component Course is comprised of 9-weeks Distance Learning (DL) followed by 3-weeks of in-residence education in Newport, RI. There is 1-week of Admin/Travel between the two phases, making the course 13 weeks from start to finish. During the DL phase students read, write papers, and interact with instructors and each other via the Blackboard Learning Management System. Students can expect approximately 8 to 10 hours of academic work each during the 9-week DL phase.

For Reservists, the 8-week Reserve Component Course is comprised of 6-weeks of DL and 2-weeks of in-residence education. There is 1-week of Admin/Travel between the two phases, making the course 9-weeks from start to finish. During the DL phase students read, write papers, and interact with instructors and each other via the Blackboard Learning Management System. Students can expect approximately 8 to 10 hours of academic work each during the 9-week DL phase.

Both Active Duty and Reservists formats require completion of online PME prior to attending. See the SEA website for more detail.

The in-residence portions of both Active Duty and Reservists courses use facilitated (Socratic) seminar as the primary method of curriculum delivery. Additionally, auditorium lectures featuring subject matter experts from the Naval War College, Naval Justice School, Naval Personnel Command, and local colleges and universities also enhance various blocks of instruction. SEA students normally attend class from 0700 to 1630, Monday through Friday, and are allotted 90 minutes for lunch.

NAVY LEADERSHIP AND ETHICS CENTER (NLEC)

The Naval Leadership and Ethics Center (NLEC) inculcates the fundamental tenets of ethical leadership throughout the naval profession, from Seaman Recruit to Captain. NLEC guides the development of leaders with a strong, abiding sense of their responsibility, authority, and accountability, and who are committed to Navy Core Values and the Navy Ethos. NLEC provides leadership education and training, curricula support, leading-edge research, and assessment of leadership effectiveness across the Navy to ensure our leader development activities remain current and relevant. Its functions include:
1. Leadership Education and Training. NLEC will deliver first-rate, role-specific leader development that builds confidence and competence in attaining Leader Development Outcomes in our Navy professionals, from Seaman Recruit to Captain. NLEC retains at its core the responsibility to develop leaders at the command level, including Major Command, Commanding Officer, Executive Officer, and Command Master Chief/Chief of the Boat.

2. Curricula Support. NLEC will partner with accession sources, the Center for Personal and Professional Development (CPPD), the Senior Enlisted Academy, the U.S. Naval War College, and the MCPON’s Leadership Mess on developing Navy-wide leadership and ethics curricula that support effective leader development and strengthen our collective stewardship of the naval profession.

3. Research. NLEC will conduct leading-edge research, in conjunction with the U.S. Naval War College, in areas such as self-awareness, command climate, organizational culture, and decision-making that will influence curricula and leader development activities.

4. Assessment. NLEC will assess leadership effectiveness across the Navy, analyze trends, and modify curricula to ensure currency and relevance. NLEC will partner with the U.S. Naval War College, academia, sister Services, and the Fleet to bring to the forefront best practices and areas for further work, and to ensure synchronization and alignment with the Leader Development Strategy.

CNO STRATEGIC STUDIES GROUP

The Chief of Naval Operations (CNO) Strategic Studies Group (SSG) generates revolutionary naval warfare concepts for the Navy of the future. Revolutionary implies that the concepts would upset the existing order. Therefore, these concepts are non-consensual. The SSG focuses its efforts on warfighting concepts that appear to have great potential, but which Navy organizations are currently not pursuing.

Retired Navy Vice Adm. James P. Wisecup is the Director of the SSG, which is a tenant command on the U.S. Naval War College campus in Newport, Rhode Island. The SSG is co-located with NWC to facilitate collaboration as part of the Navy’s process for naval warfare innovation.

The SSG is tasked directly by the CNO, and reports only to the CNO. The CNO personally selects senior Navy officers and approves assignment of USMC, USCG, and USAF nominees to serve as CNO Fellows on the SSG. Working with the President, NWC, the Director hand picks six NWC students to serve as a Director Fellows for each SSG.

At the completion of each year’s efforts, the SSG produces a final briefing to Navy leadership that provides a view of the future Navy along with broad recommendations, detailed roadmaps, and immediately actionable steps to inform and identify near and mid-term decisions to prepare the Navy for that future.

NAVAL WAR COLLEGE MUSEUM

The Museum's themes are the history of naval warfare, particularly as studied at the College, and the naval heritage of Narragansett Bay—a tale that begins with the nation's colonial roots. Its collection consists of items relating to these subjects that are perceived to be of value to scholarship, and it forms the core for exhibits throughout the College and for educational outreach projects. Besides permanent exhibits on the College, the genesis of the Navy in the region, and the evolution of permanent naval installations from the late nineteenth century to the present, the Museum features short-term special exhibits relating to College curriculum and to current naval-related topics. In general, Museum exhibits identify milestones in the evolutionary development of war at sea; explain the significance of the sea as a factor in the formulation and the attainment of national policy objectives; describe the character, educational philosophy, and mission of the College; and chronicle the eventful relationship of the U.S. Navy with Narragansett Bay and its people.

While the Museum is primarily for the education and the edification of the Naval War College community, it is in a larger sense the corporate memory of the Navy in the region, and it serves as a clearinghouse for naval history information in New England. The Museum Director, a subjects-area specialist, and staff answer inquiries, provide guidance and orientation talks to visitors on regional naval history and current exhibits, and assist scholarly researchers in the use of the Museum holdings. You may also access the U.S. Navy 20th Century Ships History Database, available on a kiosk at the museum.

STUDENT ORIENTATION
The Dean of Students Office is responsible for the orientation of resident U.S. students. After a student is informed by their service / agency of their assignment to NWC, they should be directed to contact the Dean of Students Office by email at: studentpoc@usnwc.edu. After contact has been established, the student will receive a welcome aboard letter via email containing directions for online enrollment, housing information and preliminary reading requirements. Resident U.S. Naval War College students matriculate in August, November or March.

New-student orientation is a multi-day event. Day one briefs include: Introduction to the War College, Core Curriculum, Policies, and Advanced Research Programs. The President or Provost and the Dean of Academic Affairs welcome all incoming students and participate in these briefs. Day two briefs include: Security, Resources, Medical, International Programs, and Information Resources. Day three briefs include: Reading and Writing Expectations and Library Assets. Other days will include health assessment, urinalysis testing (military students only), email account set-up, and book issue. The other services conduct an additional orientation, focusing on service specific requirements and preparations for a year of study at a Navy installation.

The international orientation is conducted soon after the international students arrive in the United States before their academic programs begin. This two week-long event, designed for both the officers and, if appropriate, their spouses, gives an in-depth introduction to the United States, Newport, the college, and the international colleges. The international officers and spouses are given overviews of American history, government, political system, foreign policy, NWC academics, and organization of the U.S. Armed Forces. Staff and others introduce the mission, objectives, and procedures of the college; the Newport naval complex and its supporting services; and the surrounding civilian community, local government, school enrollment, banking, day care, medical, dental, legal, housing, shopping, vehicle purchase/registration, transportation, culture, customs, local area familiarization and other services. As with U.S. students, the President and the Provost personally participate in this orientation program.

Students in all four programs in the College of Distance Education are provided an orientation to their particular program. Each orientation is designed to ensure that the student has the necessary tools to understand the methodology and in some cases the technology used in each program. In the Fleet Seminar Program, students are provided contact information for the Program Office in Newport, their professor, and the liaison office for their specific location. Students enrolled in the NWC at NPS Program are provided an orientation through the program manager located at the NPS. Book issue, classroom assignment and all administrative requirements are handled by the Monterey office. Web-Enabled Program students are given a full week of orientation to the Learning Management System of Blackboard. Here they test their computer systems to ensure compatibility. This week also introduces them to their course instructor, the administrative personnel, the Blackboard technical expert, and the program manager. Students applying to the CDROM-based Program are provided an offer of enrollment from the program manager. Once enrolled, a DVD is provided that instructs first time students to verify computer hardware and software requirements needed to begin the program. If shortfalls exist, a link is provided so the student can install the software needed. This DVD also gives the student information on administrative contact personnel as well as CDE full-time faculty that may be contacted.
MISSION, VISION, GOALS, AND OBJECTIVES

Student Support

Each student in the resident course is issued a comprehensive course syllabus, iPad, books, readings, and other course materials at no cost. U.S. students must return the iPads and nearly all of their textbooks. International students are authorized to retain all issued course materials. Computers with intranet and internet connections are available in several locations throughout the college. Students are able to get Common Access Card (CAC) readers issued so they may access the NWC portal from home to complete administrative tasks and academic assignments. Staff and technical support is provided during working hours. Access to printers, copiers, and paper supplies is provided at convenient locations throughout the campus. Wireless connectivity is available at most locations which students may access using iPads and personal laptops. Also available within the academic complex are the Eccles Library, medical and dental offices, bookstore, barber shop, mailboxes, coffee and food vending machines, and breakfast and lunch (both hot and cold fare) at the Hewitt Café. A Naval War College identification badge and common access card give students twenty-four hour access to the complex and computer resources. Library facilities are also available twenty-four hours a day; library staff is available between the hours of 0800 and 1630. Additional on-campus student services are provided by the Deputy / Chief of Staff’s organization, including security clearances, automobile registration, photo identification, name tags, and audio-visual aids.

Students in the College of Distance Education are provided all materials needed for each of the core courses in each program. In addition, students have access to the NWC Library data base with which they can then access NWC library facilities, via the Blackboard Learning System. Additionally, students in the NWC at NPS Program have access to the NPS library facilities. Also, students in the Fleet Seminar Program have access to the many civilian and other government library facilities in their local areas. These include such facilities as the U.S. Naval Academy, Joint Intelligence College, Marine Corps University, and the Library of Congress.

The Naval War College is located aboard Naval Station Newport. Military students and their families benefit from the multifaceted services a naval station offers to the military community. A nearby Officers’ Club provides food and entertainment and is available to civilian students as well. For eligible military and civilian students, the Navy Exchange, Commissary, the Navy-Marine Corps Thrift Shop, and Consolidated Package Store offer good value on merchandise, groceries, and beverages.

Since instruction is presented in English, international students must demonstrate language proficiency on standardized tests before they may attend the college. Weekly training in English as a Second Language (ESL) is available, offered as an elective for international officer students. Separate ESL classes are offered to other international students and spouses who desire to hone their English skills. Additionally, language tapes and CDs are available in Arabic, Croatian, and Spanish for any who would like to learn these languages on their own time.

Student Counseling

The Dean of Students is responsible for the general welfare of all U.S. students in residence. Resident students may seek personal and professional counseling from the dean, their respective military service advisors, or the faculty. While the Dean of Students, service advisors, and directors of the international colleges provide professional and personal counseling on an open-door, “drop in any time” basis, faculty seminar moderators meet with students regularly during classroom sessions and scheduled tutorials. Thus, they are often best able to identify students with academic or personal problems and refer them to the appropriate channel for assistance. Because the counselor role is an inherent part of military leadership, military faculty members take the lead in this regard.

When resident students experience difficulty with the stress of the academic environment or other problems, short-term counseling is also available through the Naval Station’s Fleet and Family Support Center, mental health department at the Navy Medical Clinic, as well as the Social Work Department at the Newport Hospital. NWC CDE students in all programs are afforded the opportunity to contact their respective program managers, course division heads or individual full time and adjunct faculty for any academic or administrative questions or comments they may have. The CDE Washington, DC office has a full time faculty member and administrative assistant who are responsible for conducting counseling and oversight of the seminars in that area. The NWC at NPS Program Office has a full time program manager and administrative support personnel who are available to all students enrolled in that program. Also, at our FSP Additional Instructional Locations there are liaison personnel who assist Fleet Seminar students with administrative requirements and book issue.

RELIGIOUS ACTIVITIES

Protestant, Roman Catholic, and Jewish services are conducted throughout the week at the Naval Station’s Chapel of Hope as well as support and outreach to the Islamic community. Navy chaplains maintain contact with local leaders of other religious communities in order to meet the needs of military and civilian personnel, including international students.

A Chaplain is available for counseling in a confidential setting. The office can be contacted during normal working hours by calling (401) 841-2234. After 4 p.m., on weekends, and on holidays, the Duty Chaplain can be contacted through the Naval Station Newport Command Duty Officer (CDO) at (401) 862-8378
STUDENT HEALTH SERVICES

Health facilities are available for all military students within the college and for their families at the Naval Health Clinic New England (NHCNE) and the Newport Hospital. On campus, the college also has an Independent Duty Corpsman (IDC) who conducts weekday “sick call,” taking care of minor ailments and referring more severe issues to the nearby clinic for immediate attention or the Newport Hospital after hours. The IDC also oversees a Health Risk Assessment Program that appraises students’ overall health upon entrance and provides training on the benefits of health maintenance.

During indoctrination, routine laboratory tests are conducted, lifestyles evaluated, and physical exams, and counseling are provided. Specialized dental care is provided at the Naval Station dental clinic. Civilian students use the medical and dental coverage provided through their federal employment agency.

For more information on NHCNE visit:

RECREATION AND EXTRACURRICULAR ACTIVITIES

Although the year in Newport is academically challenging, students are encouraged to participate in social, recreational, athletic, and other extracurricular activities that balance their academic pursuits.

Naval Station Newport MWR provides many services and opportunities for recreation and outdoor activities including fitness and sports, clubs & catering, movie theaters, libraries, golf courses, bowling centers, marinas and outdoor recreation, the single sailor/liberty program, tickets and travel, and recreational lodging.

For more information visit: http://discovermwr.com/navalstationnewport/

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

Throughout the year, students can participate in a wide variety of formal and informal social activities. As new seminars are formed each trimester, faculty members generally arrange social events (e.g. icebreakers) often at their homes, to get acquainted in an informal atmosphere. Seminars tend to be the organizational unit for student activities. Military socials begin in the fall with the Navy Ball (October), followed by the Marine Corps Ball (November), the Air Force Holiday Ball (December), and the Army Ball (May). Class, service, and seminar gatherings, as well as trips to various cultural and athletic events, provide the opportunity for interaction between students of other military services and nationalities. Students are also involved in a wide variety of local community activities, combining recreation with social responsibility. Many take an active part in holiday food and gift drives; some participate as volunteers for Scout troops, youth sports teams, women’s shelters and soup kitchens; others tutor local elementary, middle, and high school students. Student activities are financed in part by the students themselves, while additional funding comes from Morale, Welfare, and Recreation funds and from the Naval War College Foundation.

The essential component of the International Program at the college, as well as the vision of the late Admiral Arleigh Burke who founded the program, is the fostering of camaraderie and lifelong friendship among international officers and their U.S. counterparts. The program aims to create professional and personal ties that will allow close collaboration among professional colleagues to prevent war and, if conflict comes, to work together to gain a decisive victory. Both international colleges have wardrooms to facilitate informal personal exchanges, and both hold class meetings throughout the year. Many events are organized by the international colleges’ staffs to familiarize the students and their families with aspects of customs and culture in the United States. In addition, international students are encouraged to sponsor cultural events that showcase their nations’ culture, traditions, food, and dress. The President, Provost, Dean of Students and Dean of International Programs participate in many of these cultural and social events. The international colleges encourage an informal, voluntary program of “in home entertaining,” wherein intermediate international officers invite their classmates and families to their homes to share a bit of their country’s food, culture, history, and hospitality in a relaxed setting.

International students are also introduced to the concept of community service, through interaction with local organizations and clubs. Luncheons, dinners, or presentations are hosted by the Navy League of the United States chapters in Newport, New York, San Francisco, St. Louis, and Phoenix. Local clubs, including the Lions Club, the Dunes Club, and the Quindecim Club, host functions for international officers and their spouses to familiarize them with Americans and American life. During these events, students meet community, political, and business leaders and discuss a wide range of issues and topics. These events help to demonstrate civilian support of the military and also ways in which many former military members serve their communities in civilian life.

ATHLETIC ACTIVITIES AND FACILITIES

Coordinated by the Dean of Students Office and run by students, group athletics include intramural sports run through the base gym, the President’s Cup Competition (an interclass athletic competition held three times a year), and the Army-Navy Flag Football game. In addition to these organized events, each military professional is required to maintain a high level of personal physical fitness and conditioning. The Naval Station gym, located close to the college, is a full-service facility providing cardio and weightlifting equipment, basketball and racquetball courts, a pool, locker rooms, and saunas. It also has professional athletic trainers on staff and available to assist in developing a conditioning program. Also located near the college are tennis courts, fields for baseball, soccer, and football, and a swimming pool. The gym rents equipment for a wide variety of sports. International students compete in athletics with their U.S. seminar counterparts. Sports provide an outstanding opportunity for team and relationship building outside of the classroom. The games are directed, coached, and supported by students, staff and faculty.

STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS

The Student Government Organization for degree-granting resident programs supports academic, athletic, and social activities. Each class functions according to its constitution and bylaws. Each college has an executive committee composed of a president and vice president, both from the August matriculating class. This executive committee appoints members to serve as chairs of the student academic and athletic committees, as well as social committees if the class desires. A secretary and treasurer may also be appointed. Each seminar has an appointed leader, who organizes student physical fitness, business, academic, activity, and athletic functions. The student seminar organization is revised each trimester. NCC’s class officers include a sports representative, a social committee chairman, and a travel committee chairman. NSC has a social representative and sports representative.

REGISTRAR

The Dean of Students serves as the Registrar and operates the military equivalent of an admissions office and student records office. The Registrar is responsible for development and maintenance of the college wide student database, academic records, statistical data, and biographical records. The Registrar also coordinates transcript preparation and works closely with the academic departments in grade preparation and computation; assists in the determination of eligibility to graduate with distinction and highest distinction; and coordinates graduate degree and diploma preparation for both resident and nonresident students. The Registrar is also responsible for alumni transcripts. Release of personal information regarding students and alumni is in accordance with the Federal Privacy Act. Transcripts are sent out only upon written request and with authorization from the graduate. In addition, the registrar coordinates applications for those students desiring to apply for the Strategic Studies Group and oversees the receipt and administration of all civilian student nomination packages.
ALUMNI AFFAIRS

The NWC Office of Alumni Affairs was established in 2009 to build and sustain networks of trust and confidence. The Alumni Office provides The Graduate Network for Lifelong Learning, a lifetime learning network of resources, perspectives and educational approaches to all NWC alumni. Additionally, the Alumni Office facilitates a feedback loop for the improvement of the NWC curricula and programs.

For more information, visit the Alumni Affairs Webpage at https://usnwc.edu/Departments---Colleges/Alumni.aspx.

FACULTY

The Naval War College maintains a well-qualified, highly experienced faculty to educate students. The civilian faculty includes ambassadors and senior executive service government officials along with accomplished professors who come from prominent academic institutions. In addition to a highly professional civilian faculty, NWC has a military faculty with decades of experience.

ACCREDITATION

The Naval War College is accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges Commission on Institutions of Higher Education. Additionally, the College is accredited to deliver Joint Professional Military Education (JPME) by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff (CJCS) through the Process for Accreditation of Joint Education (PAJE). This is a CJCS-approved process for the oversight, assessment, and improvement of the JPME programs at intermediate and senior colleges.
